U. S. DISTRICT ATTORNEY SAYS 30 ARE INVOLVED IN ARMS TRANSACTION

Twelve Shanghai Men And Women Already Named And Husar Claims That's Just The Beginning—Decision In Franklin Subpoena Today—Mrs. Stein And Maloney, Granted Bail, To Have Hearing Tuesday

Yesterday's developments in the million dollar arms and ammunition case were:

1.—Mrs. Elizabeth Stein of "Shanghai Sports" was granted a reduction in bail to G.$1,000.

2.—Bail was granted J. J. ("Mal") Maloney, Shanghai baseball player, in the sum of $2,000.

3.—Judge C. S. Franklin was subpoenaed into the United States Court and became the center of a legal battle in an effort by United States District Attorney Leonard G. Husar to have him turn over telegrams and other documents in his possession alleged to concern the arms deals.

4.—The names of 12 people were mentioned in connection with the charges.

5.—A warrant was issued for the arrest of C. V. Stein, former American army officer and now Advisor to Chang Tso-lin.

6.—District Attorney Husar announced that altogether at least 30 people were involved in the expose.

7.—Preliminary hearings of Mrs. Stein and Maloney set for Tuesday, July 17.

The first guns in what has already developed into one of the most sensational and wide-spread criminal proceedings ever held in the United States Court were fired before United States Commissioner Nelson E. Lurton yesterday afternoon when Mr. F. J. Schuhl, counsel for the defense, appeared to oppose the subpoena issued at the instance of United States District Attorney Leonard G. Husar forcing Judge C. S. Franklin to surrender certain telegrams and other documents in his possession alleged to have an important bearing in the wholesale importation of arms and ammunition. At the same time Mr. Schuhl asked for a reduction of bail for Mrs. Elizabeth Stein, who was arrested late Wednesday night, and attempted to have bail set for J. J. Maloney, who was arrested in connection with the same charges about the same time.

DECISION TODAY

The Franklin subpoena stirred up a hornet's nest and proved by far the most sensational and interesting phase of the proceedings despite the fact that the large crowd that packed the court-room had come out of morbid curiosity to hear and see Mrs. Stein, who made her first appearance in court.

After a duel of wits between Mr. Husar and Mr. Schuhl on the question of privileged documents Commissioner Lurton announced that he would take the matter under consideration and hand down his decision at 10 o'clock this morning. Commissioner Lurton acceded to Mr. Schuhl's request and reduced Mrs. Stein's bail to G.$1,000, which she secured and left the Victoria Nursing Home where she has been held in custody because of the fact that there are no accommodations for women in the American jail. The Commissioner, however, on a legal technicality, refused to grant Maloney bail as he held that he had no judicial knowledge the baseball player was behind the bars.

TO NAME THIRTY

The United States Attorney created a sensation during the process of the hearing when, following the naming of twelve men and women in connection with the charges, he announced that "this is just the beginning." Before the investigation which he has started is completed, the District Attorney asserted, at least thirty men and women, some of them very prominent locally, would be hauled into the lime-light.

"I intend to get at the bottom of the arms smuggling that has been going on in Shanghai," Mr. Husar declared emphatically.

When court convened Mr. Schuhl addressed Commissioner Lurton, explaining that he appeared as counsel for Judge Franklin to oppose the subpoena which called upon Judge Franklin to produce all the papers in his possession belonging to Capt. Kearney or The Kearney Company, Inc. Mr. Schuhl submitted that Judge Franklin could not be compelled to produce the documents for inspection by the District Attorney on the grounds that they were privileged com-

Manitoba 2 To 1 Against Beer And Wines For Hotels

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

Winnipeg, July 13.—Manitoba has voted down a bill legalising the sale of light wines and beer with meals. Supporters of the bill urged that light wines and beer be allowed to be served when persons were eating meals similar to resturants with liquor licenses. The bill was opposed by the entire church sentiment of the province.

REVERSE DECISION IN KINDLER CASE AT FRENCH COURT

Ruling Against Dentist Is Canceled By Appeal Finding

A decision given over a year ago against Dr. Max Kindler ordering him to pay $14,000 to one Doo Yueh-sang and two other Chinese, or go to prison for six months, was reversed yesterday by M. de la Prade, president of the French Mixed Court. Dr. Kindler was completely exonerated of the charge and the parties were ordered to bear their own costs.

The facts of the case are as follows. On April 20, 1921 an agreement was entered into between Dr. Kindler and the Chinese whereby for the sum of $20,000, in two instalments of $6,000 and $14,000, the former was to secure for the latter a French Municipal license for a pharmacy for the purpose of disposing of stocks of raw opium for medicinal purposes. If the license were not obtained within one month the monies received by Dr. Kindler were to be returned, except $700 as fees for his services. Dr. Kindler failed to secure the license.

The defence admitted having received the sum of $6,000 but stated that a receipt for $14,000 was the result of some losses suffered by him in a gambling game at the Social Club in Frenchtown, as a result of which he gave Doo Yueh-sang a promissory note for $14,000.

The French Consul yesterday held that the transaction was an illegal one and dismissed the charge against Dr. Kindler.

M. Noveau appeared for the complainant Doo Yueh-sang, while Dr. Kindler was represented by M Lafrantz.

BANK OF CHINA SHAREHOLDERS ARE WORRYING

Following the announcement that Wang Ko-min, Governor of the Bank of China, has accepted the finance portfolio in the tottering Peking Cabinet, shareholders of the Bank of China at Shanghai held a meeting yesterday and decided to call a general meeting of the shareholders to devise means of extricating the bank from the political quagmire.

Rumors have it that Wang proposes to issue $7,000,000 worth of new notes in order to utilise the funds for the presidential election.

FRENCH WILL RUIN EUROPE IF UNCHECKED SAYS BALDWIN

British Premier, In Guarded Statement, Warns Paris

MAY ACT ALONE

Ready To Assume Responsibility Of Replying To Berlin

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 12.—In the House of Commons today Mr. Stanley Baldwin, in his eagerly awaited statement, announced that the Government were willing to assume responsibility for preparing a draft reply to the German Note, the suggestions in which, whether adequate or not, should not be ignored. The Government had informed the French, Belgian and Italian Governments accordingly.

Mr. Baldwin said that they would submit the reply with the least possible delay to the Allies for consideration and remarks, and they indulged the hope that they would be able to arrive at an agreement with regard to the terms. The Government confidently invited sympathetic consideration by the whole of the Allies and by all interested States of the proposals, which had no other aim than the pacification of Europe and the recovery of the exhausted world.

The announcement was preceded by a review of the position in which the Prime Minister strongly emphasised the community of thought and action which bound Britain in the present emergency to the Allies and made especially sympathetic allusion to France. The British Government was moved, as were the Governments of France and the other Allies, by the single desire that the good-will between the nations who had endured together should be maintained and that each should obtain its due.

JUST AS EXPECTED

Mr. Baldwin emphasised that the British anticipations regarding the consequences of the Ruhr occupation had been largely realised. Germany herself appeared to be moving fast towards economic chaos. The recovery of the world was in danger and peace, for which so many sacrifices had been made, was at stake.

Indefinite occupation by one country of the territory of another in time of peace was a phenomenon, rare and regrettable in itself, to which an honorable end should as soon as possible be found. Peace would not be finally obtained and recovery ensured until a solution had been found of reparations, a settlement of Inter-Allied debts and the security of a pacified Europe.

The Prime Minister, referring to the common desire of the Allies for settlement and pacification without further or unreasonable delay, said that whispers of interested parties could not be allowed on either side of the Channel or in any part of Europe to deflect us from that duty by any reservations or carefully fostered misunderstandings.

GERMANS MUST PAY

"We are as determined as any of our Allies that Germany shall make reparation for the damage done in the Great War (Ministerial cheers) to the fullest extent of her capacity. We have never wavered on this point and I do not believe that our people ever will. Indeed, we are ready to use every measure to compel Germany to pay up to the amount of her capacity. We are firmly convinced, however, that methods which can only result in the ruin of Germany would be fatal to this country, to our Allies and to the whole of Europe."

Mr. Stanley Baldwin emphasised that a spirit of sincere loyalty and alliance continued, in the Government's opinion, the main security of European peace. (Cheers).

Referring to the Ruhr, the Prime Minister said that the Allies were obtaining less reparation than before the occupation (Opposition cheers). What reparations they were receiving were being exacted at the price of the growing dislocation of the German economic system and, as seemed probable in the future, the total collapse of the system

FIRPO KNOCKS OUT WILLARD IN EIGHTH

"WILD BULL OF THE PAMPAS" DEFEATS EX-CHAMPION, WILL NOW SEEK DEMPSEY'S TITLE

Match Between Argentine Giant And Present Holder Of Heavy Weight Crown Probably Will Be Arranged For Labor Day In September; No Details Of Jersey City Battle Received; Firpo's Career Spectacular

(Reuter's Service)

Jersey City, July 13.—Luis Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight boxer, knocked out Jess Willard, the ex-champion of the world, in the eighth round.

It is expected that Firpo will be matched with Jack Dempsey.

Aside from the above Reuter message and a radio "flash" announcing the outcome of the Willard-Firpo battle at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City, New Jersey, (just across the river from New York City) no word was received in Shanghai yesterday or last night that would throw any additional light on the contest, or explain the manner of Firpo's great victory.

As a result of the Argentine man's triumph over the ancient Willard the next event of importance on the boxing calender will be the battle for the heavyweight title between Firpo and Dempsey, which probably will be arranged for this autumn. There has been talk of staging this contest on Labor Day, which is the first Monday in September, but no definite announcement has been made to that effect.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, always has said that he would let the champion fight "when the public demanded it." Well, the public certainly will demand a match between Dempsey and Firpo now and the sooner the battle is arranged the more the public will be pleased.

Willard's defeat, while not unexpected, is in a way pathetic. Jess made a marvelous effort to "come back," and had not the Wild Bull of the Pampas blocked his path he undoubtably would have worked his way to another battle with Dempsey, which is the one thing he was striving for. His defeat, in all probability, was the defeat of age by youth.

Firpo's rise to pugilistic fame has been rapid. Last year he went to New York a stranger, his first battle being with one "Sailor" Maxted, whom he knocked out in 7 rounds. That was in March. In May he met and defeated Jack Herman, whom he defeated in five rounds. After that he met Bill Brennan, on whom he inflicted terrible punishment—so terrible that physicians, after a survey of Bill at a hospital, marveled that any man "could take such a beating and live," to use their own words. His next fight was with Jim Tracey, whom he Kayoed in four rounds, and his last battle, before meeting Willard, was with Jack McAuliffe, at the "Milk Fund" tournament in New York a few weeks ago, in which he put Jack out in three rounds.

Thus it will be seen that the gent from the Argentine has quite an imposing record, and that he gives every promise of making Mr. Dempsey travel some to retain that highly valuable title that he has been carrying around for some four years.

A Treasure-Trove of Humor From His Newly Discovered Newspaper Writings

A YEAR'S SUPPLY

HE was one of the city's weariest men, but he made no ostentatious display of his wealth. A little, thin, poorly clad girl, stood looking in the window of the restaurant at the good things to eat. The man approached and touched her on the shoulder.

"What is your name, little girl?" he asked.

"Susie Tompkins, sir," she answered, looking up at him with great, haunting, blue eyes.

There was something in her pleading, innocent voice that stirred a strange feeling in the millionaire's heart. Still it may have been indigestion.

"Have you a father?" he asked.

"Oh, no, sir, mother has only me to support."

"Is your mother very poor?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"What is your mother's name?"

"Susan, sir. Just like mine."

"Tell me, child," said the wealthy man, clutching her arm in an agony of suspense. "Has your mother a wart on her nose, and does her breath smell of onions?"

"Yes, sir."

The millionaire covered his face with his hands for a moment and then said in a trembling voice:

"Little one, your mother and I once knew each other. You have her voice, her hair, and her eyes. If it had not been for a misunderstanding — perhaps—but that is all past now."

The man unbuttoned his overcoat and took from his vest pocket a package.

"Take this," he said. "I have more than I want. It will last you and your mother a year."

The girl took the package and ran home in glee.

"Oh, see, mama!" she cried. "A gentleman gave me this. He said it would last us a whole year."

The pale woman unrolled the package with trembling hands.

It was a nice new calendar.

EUGENE FIELD

No gift his genius might have had
Of titles high, in church and state,
Could charm him as the one he bore,
Of children's poet-laureate.

He smilingly pressed aside his bays
And laurel garlands that he won,
And bowed his head for baby hands
To place a daisy wreath upon.

He found his kingdom in the ways,
Of little ones he loved so well,
For them he tuned his lyre and sang,
Sweet simple songs of magic spell.

Ah! greater feat to storm the gates
Of children's pure and cleanly hearts,
Than to subdue a warring world
By stratagems and doubtful arts.

A tribute paid by chanting choirs
And pealing organs rises high;
But soft and clear, somewhere he hears
Through all, a child's low lullaby.

Tango Dancer, Friend Of Firpo, Tells About Him

Robert Medrano, a tango dancer from the Argentine, last season with George White's "Scandals," is one of Luis Angel Firpo's close friends.

As boys they went to school together in Buenos Aires. Later they took up the study of chemistry together. Note how Fate worked out strange decinies for the young chemists. Firpo became a prizefighter, Medrano a dancer.

Medrano frequently visit Firpo in Firpo's New York home, a small apartment in Ninety-fourth street, near Riverside Drive.

"Luis gets tea from home," says Medrano, naively. "I like to drink his tea."

Medrano sheds much light on the characteristics and personality of "the Wild Bull of the Pampas."

It seems Firpo, pronounced "Feerpo" by Medrano, has really never seen the pampas—great

Huge Lantern Procession Prelude For Celebration Of French Holiday Today

Many Events Scheduled In Program; Parade Of Last Night Witnessed By Enthusiastic Throngs

French citizens of Shanghai and their friends of other nationalities as well will observe the Quatorze Juillet with a series of official receptions, a program of sports, band concerts and illuminations and a grand dinner and ball.

The official program begins at 8 o'clock this morning with the flag raising ceremony to be held at the French Consulate-General and carries on throughout the day, the climax being provided by the annual French Club ball, which will be more largely attended than ever this year.

The program of sports to be held at the French Park this afternoon promises much in the way of entertainment if the weather clerk is not unkind. Various races and contests will be held and among the features are the tug of war and the hose duel between members of the French and International Fire Departments.

PARADE GORGEOUS AFFAIR

To the enthusiastic approval of some hundreds of thousands of Chinese and foreign spectators, the French community last night inaugurated their national holiday with one of the most gorgeous lantern processions in their long and brilliant record of such affairs.

Frenchtown and the southeastern border of the International Settlement from dusk last evening until long after the last bobbing lantern had faded into darkness was a compact mass of ardent onlookers, through which the long parade threaded its way, Shanghai's ordinary population evidently having been considerably swelled by an influx from the surrounding districts.

The procession of last night was a solid mile or more of color, bands, elaborately decorated floats, fantastic illuminated paper figures and all the other constituents of a highly successful lantern parade. It moved to the accompaniment of fireworks and crackers and passed along a route which was a fitting setting for such a demonstration. Municipal and Consular edifices, hongs, clubs, shops and electric light poles blazed with colored electric lights, arranged in curious or appropriate designs, while the tricolor and shield of the Republic and the flags of other nations were draped from every possible vantage point.

ELABORATE FLOATS

The procession left from before the Municipal buildings shortly before 9 o'clock headed by officers of the French police, a squadron of Annamite police and band and, once under way, the entire visible length of Rue du Consulat became a wavering river of Chinese lanterns, torches and floats, with rockets and flares spiritting skyward from among the massed marchers. Members of the French Fire Brigade in uniform followed the first band, and then came the beautifully decorated fire apparatus of both French and International Departments. These trucks gave evidence of much thought and painstaking care in the matter of their draping and each piece was greeted with a burst of applause from the crowds along the way. A giant Cock of France headed the section, while behind it came battleships, arbors and a series of floats depicting different periods of history, all worked out in lights, flowers and greenery, with appropriately costumed characters assigned to each.

Scenes of various Municipal departments and of bits of countryside, illuminated and peopled with miniature figures were drawn along on other floats, followed by hundreds of huge paper figures—dragons, fish, lions and other animals of all sorts, semblances of giant fruits and flowers, tramcars, airplanes, French men-of-war, monstrous gilded butterflies and other egregious insects.

MANY BANDS

Besides members of the fire and police departments, the marchers included French sailors, Russian cadets, students of various Chinese schools, members of Chinese organisations located in the French Settlement, Boy Scouts and others to the number of many hundreds. Numerous bands, including the Russian cadet and Anti-Kidnaping Society bands, interspersed the column.

The parade halted briefly on the French Bund before the brilliantly lighted Consular buildings and then passed on to Avenue Edward VII and wound its devious way to the French Park, where it dispersed.

Probably the most colorful single item of the parade was its final feature, provided by the French Tramway Company. This was a specially decorated tramcar which was simply one blaze of red, white and blue lights and bunting, arranged in colorful designs from wheels to trolley-pole.

JULY 14TH PROGRAM

Following is the program for the day:

8 a.m.—Salute to the Flag at the French Consulate-General.

Defendants Take Stand And Deny Charges In Indian Murder Hearing

Called to the witness box in their own defense, Katara Singh and Warrian Singh, the two Indian watchmen charged with the murder of a fellow countryman, Arjan Singh, whose body was found in a creek off Yu Yuen Road last month, made complete denial of the accusations against them.

The case is being heard in the British Police Court by Mr. D. R. Brooke, Magistrate, and Mr. Earl Maitland prosecuted while Mr. J. G. Priestwood defended.

Before the defense opened its case the Magistrate warned the prisoners that they were not obliged to say anything, but that whatever they said would be taken down and might be used as evidence against them. Mr. Priestwood stated that his clients pleaded not guilty and wished to go into the box.

Katara Singh was first to testify. He stated that he was 34 years old and had been in China for nine years. He had been on the municipal police force for six and a half years, leaving at his own request. Subsequently he had obtained employment as a No. 1 watchman at a cotton mill.

Witness said that he knew Arjan Singh who was employed at the mill from last December and stayed there three or four months after being dismissed from the police force. Witness had had two watches stolen and had reported the matter to the police giving the names of three men who had occupied the hut. Following the police investigation the three were dismissed. Two other watchmen left about the same time. Witness said he had no trouble with Arjan Singh before the latter left and never saw nor communicated with him after that time. Warrian Singh, he said, was not a relative of his. Warrian had been employed at the mill for a year and left about a year ago. Witness had reported Warrian Singh for being drunk and as a result the latter was dismissed. Warrian Singh did not return to the mill before May 11 of this year. After that he came back and had been re-employed.

Regarding Hando Singh, who gave evidence for the prosecution, witness said he was a Hindu. Witness had litigation in the Supreme Court when Hando was brought in as an interpreter. Hando Singh had borrowed $80 from him and had given a note for it witnessed by one Warrian Singh—not the other defendant.

He denied hearing Hando Singh state that two other watchmen were going to bring actions against him or that he had stated that one of these men was Arjan Singh and that he had therefore got rid of him. For his service as interpreter Hando Singh was promised $6 but witness did not regard him as Hando Singh already owed him money. Hando did not agree to the taking of the $6 from the amount due to witness.

Katara Singh denied the allegation that he had paid a Chinese $10 to kill Arjan Singh and said it was also false that he had told Hando Singh that he had the body buried in a field. When witness was sent for by the police he was shown a letter but stated that he could not know who sent it. He was told by the police that the writer stated he knew something about the murder. Later he was asked to Bubbling Well station. He was not charged and was not detained out. He stayed there one night and was then locked up at the Central station and was charged the next day.

Under cross-examination the witness stated that Hando Singh had lost caste through shaving his head and changing his name.

Continuing, he said he was not very friendly with Warrian Singh and denied ever having lent him a bicycle. Asked if he had any explanation to offer for Hando Singh's ability to inform the police in his anonymous letter of April 29 of the location of Arjan Singh's body, the witness replied that he did not know.

At the afternoon session the cross-examination was continued and in reply to a question the witness denied that he owed Arjan Singh any money. Evidence given regarding the passing of a note was untrue.

Asked why Narrata Singh should come into court and give evidence about the lending of $50 Katara replied that it was because one of Narrata's friends had left the employ of witness.

The Court remarked that this did not seem to be any reason and Mr. Maitland remarked that it was the best the witness could do.

Questioned regarding the heavy walking stick brought into evidence, witness said he did not know how it came to be in his room but that it was not there when he was arrested.

After some further questioning by Mr. Priestwood regarding a certain promissory note and his friendship for Warrian Singh, the second accused was called to the witness box.

Warrian Singh stated that he was 26 years old and had been in Shanghai two years and eight months. Before coming to China he had been in the army and had fought against the Turks. He had been wounded when a box of ammunition which he was carrying slipped. He had received a gold medal and a pension for his war services.

On coming to Shanghai, the witness said, he secured employment at 59 Yu Yuen Road. He had worked there for nine months. He knew Arjan Singh.

The defendant denied in toto the charges brought against him in the course of his examination, which will be continued today.

Baldwin Warns France In Speech

itself. "We are convinced that indefinite continuation of this state of affairs is fraught with grave peril. The local populations are in many cases suffering severely and there is genuine apprehension of shortage of food. Every country in Europe is paying the price for this condition of affairs."

BRITISH TRADE HIT

Mr. Baldwin referred to the serious effect on British trade and the continued unemployment, which had involved an expenditure of £400,000,000 since the Armistice. Exchange of friendly conversations did not appear to lead in all cases to positive results, and it was becoming evident that the attitude of the principal parties concerned must be more clearly defined. The period of conflict should as soon as possible be terminated. The debtor should not merely be called on to pay the debt but should be placed in a position where he can do so. His capacity, where in doubt, should be tested and determined, and united efforts should be made to accomplish these ends.

The Government, so far from desiring to deprive France and Belgium of their legal claims, wished to assist in their realisation. "We are hopeful of obtaining the concurrence of France and Belgium no less than Italy. We have every reason to believe that the views of the Italian Government are in substantial agreement with our own."

Referring to the German note, the Prime Minister said:

"We are unable to agree that a correspondence of this nature should be wholly one-sided, or that the proposals, which may be found to contain the germs of a possible settlement, should be treated with indifference. We hold that they should be examined and explored in order to discover whether there lies within them the possibility of progress. What the exact nature of the reply should be it is premature to discuss at the present stage. We do not believe that in principle we are widely separated, if at all, from the Allies, and divergence in method should not be incapable of resolution. So far as united action is possible we shall continue to pursue it."

Replying to Mr. Ramsay Macdonald who said that the opposition very profoundly hoped that Mr. Baldwin's efforts would be successful (Cheers), the Prime Minister expressed the opinion that the reply would probably be communicated to the United States. He hoped that a discussion would be possible on the second reading of the Consolidated Funds Bill.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 12.—Marquess Curzon's statement in the House of Lords was precisely similar to that of Mr. Stanley Baldwin and was punctuated by considerable applause.

Viscount Grey expressed approval of the policy disclosed. He was gratified at its very friendly tone towards the Allies and especially towards France, but he could not conceal from himself the fact that it was most grave in substance. He emphasised that the recovery of Europe was impossible without cooperation between Britain and France.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 13.—While welcoming the friendly and courteous tone of Mr. Baldwin's statement in the British House of Commons yesterday, the newspapers generally stress that it does not go far to the narrow gap between the British and French points of view.

The Echo de Paris regrets that the speech did not denounce the German resistance.

Le Journal declares that France rejects all mediation. The statement has done nothing to abate the conflict.

The Petit Parisien states that the desire to negotiate with Germany on the basis of the German Note is diametrically opposed to the French and Belgian view.

The Matin says that France will examine the British draft reply in the most conciliatory spirit. M. Poincare will assuredly not refuse to make concessions not affecting the vital interests of France if the opposing British and French views can thus be brought into unison.

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, July 13.—It is authoritatively stated in Washington that the Government has not been consulted by British officials in regard to the British reply to the German Note and that Washington has not volunteered the suggestion. Reports of interchanges of views through the Embassy in London are without foundation.

The opinion is generally expressed that Mr. Baldwin will attempt to find a remedy of the reparations tangle through joint international action to determine Germany's capacity to pay, similarly to Mr. Hughes's suggestions to France in October.

The newspapers comment favorably on Mr. Baldwin's statement.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 13.—As a broad statement of policy and an indication of Britain's intention to resume an active role in European counsels, the Premier's statement is favorably received in the lobbies, although a small section of the Ministerialists are not altogether satisfied, expressing the opinion that the speech is likely to encourage German resistance and to irritate France. The Liberals are sceptical of the successful maturity of Mr. Baldwin's plans, while the Labor Members are unqualifiedly delighted.

Most of the newspapers believe that the French and Belgian desires have been met by tactful omission of any but indirect allusions to the appointment of a commission to assess Germany's capacity to pay, and now dubiously await a fuller and more interesting statement in the course of a week or two as the policy is worked out.

The Daily Mail and the Daily Chronicle from opposite points of view are both frankly disappointed. The former says that Europe will not be revivified by such vague examinations of an extremely critical situation and complains that the Premier's statement will not bring us nearer to France. The Daily Chronicle says that Mr. Baldwin is merely giving M. Poincare an opportunity of delaying matters for some weeks longer.

The rest of the newspapers give the statement a more cordial reception.

The Times hopes that this sincerely friendly statement will make it easier for the Allies, particularly France, to join in broader efforts for the solution of a dangerous problem.

The Morning Post says that the statement seems the first instalment of a definite foreign policy for which the country will feel grateful.

The Daily Telegraph says that, whatever happens, the country will have the support of a clear conscience and the strength of a definite and unmistakeable good purpose.

The Westminster Gazette declares that, if the Government's proposals are rejected by France, we shall be reluctantly compelled to find another basis for our foreign policy.

The Daily News hails it as the best and wisest statement of policy since the Armistice.

The Daily Express says that the statement is clearly sensible and cogent and the next move is with France and Belgium.

The Daily Herald generally applauds the speech but expresses the opinion that there is no chance whatever of M. Poincare accepting the British draft reply to the German note.

Report Vanderbilt Will Wed Miss Morgan

DESPITE diplomatic denials in New York, the report persists that Reginald C. Vanderbilt, son of the dowager Mrs. Vanderbilt and the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, is to wed Miss Gloria Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hays Morgan. Mr. Morgan is American Minister to Belgium, and it is said his daughter has cabled for her parents' consent to the wedding. Mr. Vanderbilt was divorced in 1919 from Mrs. Cathleen Neilson Vanderbilt, whom he married in 1903. He is 43 and Miss Morgan is 20.

Mr. Yu Ying-Vong To Act As Senior Mixed Court Judge

During the absence on leave of Mr. Kuan Chun, Chief Magistrate of the International Mixed Court at Shanghai, Mr. Yu Ying-vong, the Senior Assistant Magistrate, will act as Chief Magistrate of the said Court.

It may be recalled that Mr. Yu is a very able Judge, and considered as one of the few possessing a rare knowledge of the different branches of the intricate Chinese Law. He is also the holder of numerous honors, amongst which may be mentioned those conferred upon him by the King of Italy and the Ministry of Justice, Peking.

Mercury Tablets, Taken By Mistake, Cost Priest's Life

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, July 13.—Father Clark, of the Catholic Mission of Fathers of the Divine Word, died Sunday night at the Catholic Mission Hospital in Hankow.

Father Clark was stationed at the Mission in the Sinyanchow, Honan. During the night about a week ago, feeling rather restless, he got up out of bed, and took what he believed to be a few headache tablets to quiet his nerves. A few days later, feeling very ill, he came to Hankow for examination, when it was found that he had taken bichloride of mercury by mistake. Everything possible was done for him at the Catholic Mission Hospital here but the poison has taken too firm a hold on his system and it was too late to save him.

With the passing away of Father Clark the Fathers of the Divine Word have lost one of their most earnest workers. He came from Brooklyn, N. Y., and was but 28 years of age, having been ordained in China about two years ago. The mistake in taking the wrong medicine was such a casual one that up to the end he could hardly believe he was about to die. Up to his last moment he had worked hard and earnestly for the establishment of schools in this country.

Canton Newspaper Gives Details Of Train Hold-Up

Details of the recent hold-up of the Canton-Kowloon train by bandits, when three passengers were killed and ninety marched away into captivity, are given in a copy of the Canton Daily News just arrived in Shanghai:

"Just as the train was passing near a small station called Kauchih How, two men sprang from the road and mounted the locomotive. The engineers were forced to continue the trip in silence, at the point of guns, the passengers being unaware of what had happened.

"When the train passed the Hung Kong station, the engineers were forced by the two intruders to blow the whistle and stop the train. All at once more than a hundred bandits sprang from hiding on both sides of the railroad. Some of the troops who were returning to Canton by this train, now being aware that robbery was about to take place, opened fire and a sharp skirmish followed. The bandits on the road were held at bay, but those in the train who travelled as passengers joined in the fight and surprised the troops, whose entire attention was occupied with fighting those on the road. This sudden turn of affairs demoralised the troops, and the whole train was at the mercy of the bandits. Excepting the three killed and the capture of the 80 odd passengers, nothing was done to the several car loads of goods that were shipped from Shekiung.

Japanese Chamber Of Commerce Delegates Continues Discussing Boycott—Reports From Tientsin, Tsinan, Tsingtao And Other Trade Centers

The second sitting of the Joint Conference of Japanese Chambers of Commerce in China and Japan and the Sino-Japanese Businessmen's Association was held yesterday afternoon in the Japanese Club hall. Following the opening address, Mr. Yonesato, the Chariman, introduced Mr. H. Kaminari, the representative of the Dairen Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. Yasuhara, the Chief Secretary of the local Japanese Chamber of Commerce, read telegrams received from Japanese Chambers of Commerce both in China and Japan, all backing the Joint Conference in terms of encouragement.

Delegates from the Japanese Chambers of Commerce in various part of China then proceeded making reports on the actual condition of the anti-Japanese boycott in China.

Mr. T. Shimadzu, of the Tsingtau Chamber of Commerce, stated that though the anti-Japanese agitation in Tsingtau was for a time as intense as that prevailing in other places, it is at present comparatively quiet by dint of the strict control by the Chinese authorities concerned there, but that the agitation against Japanese residents in principal cities and towns along the Shantung Railway was going on intensely.

BAD IN SHANTUNG

Mr. Y. Ohmachi of the Tsinan Chamber of Commerce said that the anti-Japanese movement of today was outwardly calm as compared with that which prevailed in connection with the Shantung controversy, the leading agitators being a portion of Chinese journalists and students, but inwardly the root of the agitation had been considerably strengthened. As a result of the fact that inflammatory circular telegrams have been received from Shanghai and other sources the anti-Japanese boycott and agitation have of late become more intense, Mr. Ohmachi said.

After stating in detail the progress and instances of the boycott movement, Mr. Ohmachi minutely explained respecting the Chinese authorities concerned were controlling this agitation and added that speaking about the actual condition of commerce in the district of Tsinan, those who were receiving a heaviest blow were import merchants. While the loss sustained by exporters was not so great, he concluded, there were still many of them whose business was seriously affected owing to the fact that Chinese of the same trade were making capital of this agitation in order to expand their own business.

DAIREN REPORT

Mr. H. Kaminari of the Dairen Chamber of Commerce said that Dairen is the objective of the anti-Japanese agitation prevailing today in China but fortunately there has been no act of violence there with the result that transactions between Japanese and Chinese merchants and the trade with the interior of Manchuria have not been affected at all. In fact, business is going on quite smoothly. The trade between Dairen and Japan, however, is being more or less affected owing to the silver market as well as the present economic depression, but this cannot be looked upon as an outcome of the anti-Japanese agitation.

Despite the fact that the Chinese residents in Dairen are very quiet, it is to be regretted, he said, that because of the "gold standard" question, Chinese merchants there are to all appearance suffering. Groundless fears are therefore being entertained lest the above fact may perhaps be taken advantage of by anti-Japanese agitators. It is to be emphasised at the present juncture that the only way to maintain the friendly relations between the Japanese and Chinese merchants there lies in the abolition of the gold standard and in the revival of the silver standard.

Mr. Nishikawa of the Kobe Chamber of Commerce, introducing an urgency motion, stated that judging from reports from various parts in China, he was given to understand that the excuse for the anti-Japanese agitation and boycott lay in the so-called Twenty-One Demands, the greater part of which had already been either withdrawn or modified.

"Of this fact, the majority of the Chinese people are apparently not aware, and it appears they are barking at the shadow of the Twenty One Demands," he declared.

"This is why I propose that the remaining substance of the Treaty be made public in order that the misunderstanding on the part of the bulk of the Chinese people may be cleared away," concluded Mr. Nishikawa.

Mr. Kobayashi of the Tientsin Chamber of Commerce, replying, stated to the effect that the existing substance of the so-called Twenty-One Demands had been already published in Tientsin with the object of expelling the misunderstanding of the Chinese people but in vain, and averred that in view of the fact that the Chinese agitators against Japan of today had something different up "their" sleeves regardless of the substance or the truth of the Treaty, the proposition made by Mr. Nishikawa would probably come to naught.

Mr. Yonesato of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce then explained the local state of commercial affairs, and then Mr. Mateno of Kyoto, Mr. Kotomi of Nagasaki, and Mr. Takayanagi of Osaka also made statements concerning the state of commercial affairs in their respective places.

At yesterday's meeting it was decided that full-dress would be suspended as from today and there deliberative meetings be held instead, at which views are to be exchanged without reserve.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Boycott Still On; Aid Is Refused To Wrecked Vessels

Ichang, July 13.—The anti-Japanese boycott is still being carried on, and it seems to be as strong as ever. Whenever a Japanese steamer arrives in port, no sampan dares go near it: one never sees much cargo being discharged from the ships, and they arrive from Hankow on schedule, and leave again on their appointed dates. It is the same with the Upper river steamers, and one is forced to the conclusion that the N.K.K. must be losing a lot of money through the boycott.

The N.K.K. "Tayuen" has arrived after a considerable absence, and it is known that she was ashore near Tungshih, which is between here and Shasi. It is said that while ashore no sampans were allowed to go out to her. Further when the crew went ashore to try to get some food, they were not permitted to purchase any.

One of the Chungking steamers, the "Yiyang" also went ashore somewhere above Wanhsien, and had a very bad time of it, as no assistance was rendered from the shore, and even attacks were threatened on the crew when they went ashore to try to help the ship.

It is known that there has been difficulty about the shipping of wood oil by the steamers from Wanhsien to this port. The junkmen have collected in mobs and been very threatening to the ships: even the pilots were threatened with with murder is now reported that some arrangement has been come to, and that steamers are to be allowed to carry this cargo till about the middle of October.

A week ago the officials issued a proclamation saying that certain things should not be done as they are not in accordance with the treaties: but conversation with an official the other day led one to see that they are privately in hearty sympathy with the boycott, and they say that if the people do not wish to purchase Japanese goods there is no law to force them to do so, and that is perfectly true.

We do not hear of much now in the way of intimidation, but the Society for assisting Diplomacy is keeping its eyes open, and now they have issued a counter blast to the official proclamation. They probably have not dared to say so, but it reads as if the Diplomacy assistants considered that their officials were "wang kwoh lu" (slaves without country) for they say that they had no right to issue such a proclamation.

SOME MEN WHO WANDER IN THEIR MIN MUST FIND THEIR PROMENADE A SHORT ONE

plains where the cattle range and the guachos ride. The big fighter is city born, city raised.

He comes of a middle-classpeople. His father, an Italian, is a man of average size; his mother, a Spaniard, of average size. Firpo has brothers who are big men. One of them tried to become a fighter.

BIG FOR AGE

As a boy Firpo was unusually big for his age. He is now about twenty-six, Medrano says—certainly no more, though he looks thirty.

He played football a great deal, which is to the Argentine youngsters what baseball is to the American boys. Firpo was just a fair football player.

He has some education. He went as far as high school. He likes to read, he likes music. When Caruso was in Buenos Aires Firpo attended every concert. He likes to dance the tango, which is to the Argentinians what the fox trot is to Americans. He is a fair dancer—nothing extra.

For all his outward poise and dignity, Medrano says Firpo is still a boy at heart.

He says the man in whom Firpo has profound confidence above all others is Jimmy de Forrest, his American trainer. Firpo calls De Forrest his father.

Medrano says Firpo does not realise the sensation he has created. He says Firpo was talking about his coming trip to Grand Rapids, Mich., for a boxing bout with some trepidation.

"No one there will know me," he said.

Firpo talks Italian and, of course, Spanish. He has bought a book of instruction in English and is trying hard to learn that language.

"But he says he fears he will never be able to master it," says Medrano, who speaks English quite well.

Firpo has been called "the man who never smiles." When he enters the ring his face is set in a serious expression that never changes. Medrano says Firpo is not much given to smiling at any time.

IS SPANISH-ITALIAN

Firpo is an Italian name. The Luis Angel is Spanish, Luis corresponding to our Louis. The Angel means just that—a strange name for a man, but not uncommon in Spanish-speaking countries.

Firpo—this may interest the ladies—is unmarried. He has rarely been seen in feminine company since coming to America, but is suspected of heart interest back in Buenos Aires.

Young, famous, of striking appearance—some women call him handsome—it would be very strange if this were not so.

One finds, then, that despite his ferocious aspect in the ring, his approximation of the popular conception of a caveman, Firpo has been somewhat domesticated all his life—far more so than Jack Dempsey.

The heavyweight champion was a box-car tourist in his early career, a "hobo," a stormy petrel of the western tramp-trails. The accident of finding himself pugilistically perhaps prevented Dempsey from becoming an out-and-out "yegg."

He has been "gentled," as they say of a wild horse that has been broken to saddle and harness, only within the past few years.

However, while Dempsey is all seriousness in the ring, he is the reverse out of the ring. He laughs a great deal.

Dempsey would never be able to settle down to the placidity of a Ninety-fourth street apartment like Firpo. He is too restless. Out of sheer restlessness Dempsey travels thousands of miles every year.

But in the ring, Dempsey, through greater knowledge of what he is about, is the calmer, more calculating of the two, though he fights with none the less fury.

Firpo will always be a rushing wild-eyed sort of fighter, raging inwardly when he is hurt, depending much on his natural strength. Dempsey will always be a good ring general, cool and careful.

Firpo Resembles Jim Jeffries As Ring 'Cave Man'

BY ROBERT EDGREN

The boxing world is always looking for a new sensation. There is Firpo from the Argentine, huge, bear-like, brawny, enduring and with the elemental hunger for combat and destruction strong in him.

Jim Jeffries a few days ago said: "If I started all over again I'd stick to that 'cave man' stuff. As long as they called me a cave man crowds came to see me and I made a lot of money out of fighting. When I became more of a boxer and the papers began to print pictures of me in good clothes and tell what a nice fellow I was to meet I lost half the public's interest."

Firpo, hurling his bulk against Brennan's best punches, cut, smashed, bruised, and caring nothing for it—tearing in to give for blow, finally battering Brennan down as a grizzly might batter down an ox—was a cave man. He was still a cave man when he left the garden after the fight and went to a Greenwich Village party and danced all night, with patches over his split eyebrow and white teeth grinning through lips thickened by Brennan's stabbing left. Firpo should better take Jeffries' tip and stay a "cave man." He'll make money out of it.

They used to call Jeffries "The Cave Man," and Jim looked the part. Except for his friends he had a gruff manner, a short way of speaking in monosyllables. In the ring he looked the cave man, with skin burned black by the sun, long black hair over his body and arms, and his tremendous chest and arms and legs.

Firpo is a big man, a strong man, game, confident, full of fighting spirit, thick-set, rugged, heavy. Perhaps he is the nearest thing to Jeffries seen since Jeff's time. But he isn't the cave man Jeffries was. Firpo weights 220 pounds and has a thick, paunchy body. Jeffries weighed as much and had a thirty-two inch waist and a forty-eight inch chest! Jeffries could run ten miles and finish like a sprinter.

There were few runners and no fighters that Jeffries couldn't run off their feet in anything from 100 yards to ten miles. He'd have made a cave man, all right, with his great strength and fast legs. The cave men had to do quite a bit of running, in the days of the cave tiger and the mammoth and the cave bear.

Jess Willard says he'll be delighted to box Firpo just as soon as he finishes Johnson. Johnson says he'll take Firpo as soon as he's put Willard out of it. Willard thinks he can easily outmatch Firpo in strength, and that outboxing him will be a joke. Willard might have outmatched the wild man from Argentina a few years ago. There was a time when Willard didn't feel a swinging punch on the jaw.

Willard must be feeling good in training, to talk of taking on another fight before getting his promised chance with Dempsey. It was tacitly understood that if he could whip Johnson, he'd be given his return match for the championship. But if he could flow away both Johnson and Firpo there'd be no denying him a right to a championship match.

Dempsey, at his Los Angeles home, said when he had the news from New York: "I knew Firpo could wallop. I may have softened Bill a bit, but he was still tough and Firpo must be pretty good to stop him. Of course I'd be delighted to accommodate Firpo if I had a chance, but there's no hurry. Let him have time to flatten a few more of the boys and when the public wants the match I'll be there to sign."

French Girl Flier Breaks Record

Mlle Andree Peyre

MLLE. Andree Peyre, pretty French aviatrix, has created a new world's altitude record for women fliers. She piloted her plane to a height of 15,000 feet before officials of the Aero Club of Southern California, at Los Angeles, and came also within 5,000 feet of the world's record for height attained by fliers of either sex. She used a 6-cylinder, 70-horsepower baby sport plane and was in the air an hour and ten minutes, the sealed baragraph on her machine testifying she had reached an altitude of 15,000 feet.

BOYCOTT HURTS JAPANESE BOAT TRADE ON RIVER

K. K. And N. K. K. Lines Lose Heavily; British Steamers Profit

BY DAVID ARAKIE

The anti-Japanese boycott in ina, especially along the Yang , has been a severe blow to apanese river boats. The Daire en Kaisha and the Nisshin en Kaisha have been hit very ily by this movement. The itish steamship companies ing boats in this area hav en reaping a good harvest and lling themselves of the op rtunity thus offered have i ased coast freights by ten per t, effective from July 4. panese steamers operated b Nisshin Kisen Kaisha and th iren Kisen Kaisha have fo time being withdrawn fron t of the China services, due to anti-Japanese agitation in ina. The China Navigation mpany, the Indo-China Steam p Company and the China Mer ants' Steam Navigation Com y, under a compact entered recently, have agreed to here rigidly to the new hedule of freight rates, at leas til the boycott lasts.

On the Hankow-Shanghai route conference boats are doing a od trade. Japanese vessels are tting very little of this business d cargo destined for Hankow m Hokkaido has decreased im ensely. No cargo shipment is being made between Hankow d Changteh and between ungching and Hsuchow.

HELPS BRITISH

The British steamship com nies are enjoying greater busi ss throughout China at the pense of Japanese ships. Even the Shanghai-Canton regular rvice freights, which were pre iously being reduced to meet panese competition, have now en increased, and it would em that the Chinese so-called triot and nationalist is obliged pay more now for his luxuries d necessities. The Japanese erchants declare that the Chin e requires at present immense antities of commodities manu tured in Japan, but the Chin e dealers hesitate to buy, due pressure by the Chinese magogues. The question is a rious one for all Japanese ms, for the Customs returns ow distinctly that the trade of apan with China has fallen off avily, notably during the past w months, a trend which can ly be traced to the boycott vement.

The anti-Japanese boycott to an rdinary man has lost its novelty account of its frequent use, t it has well nigh taxed the tience and forebearance of the erchants. It has been of late ployed on the least pretext, d, as we have pointed out be ore, the instrument confers no enefits on the Chinese people. hile it for the time being de rives them of the goods of the oycotted country at the same me it makes them pay much re for other manufactures. he movement does not by any eans serve to wean the Chinese om the habit of using the heaper Japanese-made produc s, nd after the boycott has spen its force, as has been so fre uently illustrated in the past, here is a keener desire to re linish from Japan. There is no oubt that much the same thing will be experienced after this war f hatred has discharged all its orce into the Yangtze.

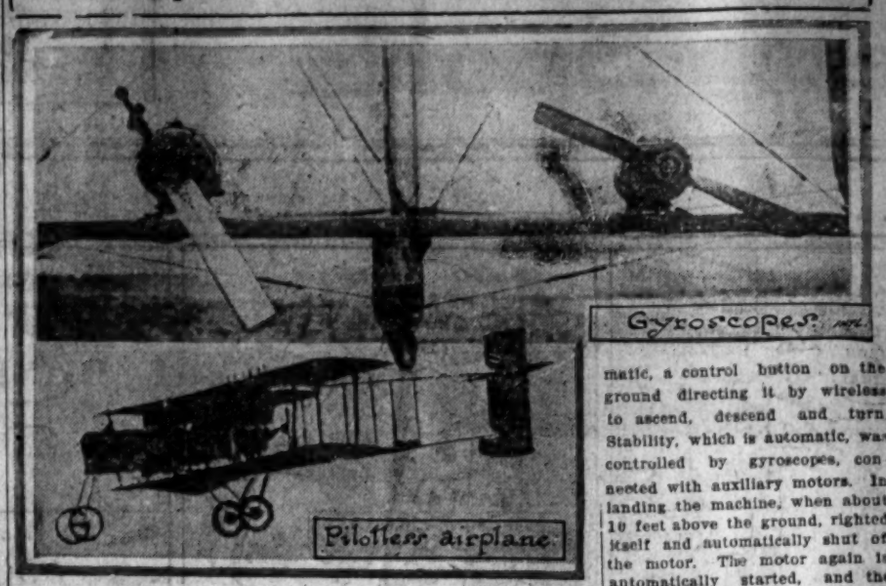
JAPANESE AROUSED

Many business associations in Japan are passing resolutions and declarations urging the Tokio Government to take strong measures. It is recognised that this boycott movement is not a recent growth, being started since the Tatsu Maru affair some years ago, and has been invariably provoked by diplomatic considerations. A section in Japan is inclined to think that the situation could only be dealt with effectively along economic lines, and in this connection suggest a greater and closer co-operation with Chinese business men for promotion of mutual interests. It is argued that when Sino-Japanese economic relations become closer, in consequence of such co-operation, the Chinese would experience great difficulty in organising boycotts in future. It is open to doubt whether the scheme is the best for solving the recurring boycott evil.

The agitation against Japanese goods has, on the whole, affected Japan's trade with China. The export trade values of May and June from Japan have fallen off markedly, but Chinese imports into Japan, on the other hand, show a fair expansion during these months. The complete statistics for last month have so far not been issued, but those for May show that the value of exports from Japan to China reached over 19 million yen against yen 30,713,000 for the corresponding period of last year, a heavy falling off by yen 11,627,000. This decrease is found in shipments to North and Central China where the disturbances have been greater.

The exports from China to Japan in the month of May reached yen 17,044,000 against yen 12,867,000 for the same period last year, an increase of yen 4,177,000. The increase was almost general with the exception of South China, where trade was paralyzed on account of disorders. A strange feature of the Sino-Japanese trade that month was that, in spite of the anti-Japanese sentiment, the balance of trade was still in favor of Japan, but compared with the correspondin month last year the balance was much smaller, namely a little over two million yen against over 17¾ million yen.

Airplane Makes Flight Without Pilot



EXPERIMENTS with an automatic airplane, directed by wireless control, have been made with complete success at Ville Sauvage, near Paris. The airplane had been made almost completely automatic, a control button on the ground directing it by wireless to ascend, descend and turn. Stability, which is automatic, was controlled by gyroscopes, connected with auxiliary motors. In landing the machine, when about 10 feet above the ground, righted itself and automatically shut off the motor. The motor again is automatically started, and the plane taxied along the ground to its hangar. No human hand touched it during the flight.

Engineers Win Water Polo Game From Police Team

The Engineers trimmed the Police Thursday in the water polo game at the Swimming Bath on North Szechuen by a 5-2 score. The Police were lacking several of their first string men and had to use substitutes.

The first half ended in the favor of the Engineers with a lead of 2-1. The second half opened with the Police using the deep water goal and it was in this stage of the combat that the Engineers did their damage for when the final whistle sounded the score was then 5-2.

Since the Police lacked most of their good men in the game they have challenged the Engineers for a return match sometime in near future but the date has not yet been set. The game attracted a huge crowd as the pool seating capacity was filled to its utmost.

Worgist Earns A Draw With Champ

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

Philadelphia, July 13.—Bobby Worgist earned a draw with Bantamweight Champion Joe Lynch in an eight round bout here tonight. Worgist battled like a demon all the way and was loudly cheered by the crowd. The decision was generally accepted as correct.

DON'T GIVE OUT BOXING LESSONS

Especially When The Other Bird Wants To Fight In Earnest

Kilbane gave Criqui a boxing lesson.

Kilbane's defeat by Criqui indicates that you shouldn't give boxing lessons outside of office hours.

Johnny gave Crik the sparring tuition for five rounds.

And then was paid off in the sixth.

Sharper than an elephant's tusk is the ingrate who doesn't appreciate boxing lessons and knocks his dear teacher loose from the little, red schoolhouse.

Crik is a bad pupil. He bopped his professor on the jaw. He also swung his right mitt and pointed out a place of interest on Kilbane's map. Crik thought the lessons were geography.

Kilbane is glad that his boxing lessons days are over. He is the only teacher in America who ever made money.

The rest of them work for the brown bread and oleomargerine all their lives and are buried by their neighbors.

Kilbane is wealthy. He got rich giving boxing lessons. Crik is the first pupil to return them with interest.

Now, Kilbane can return to Ohio and get ready to run for President next season.

He wanted to retire from the ring years ago. After his fight with Benny Valger he remarked that he was getting old. After being pressed and ironed by Crik, he said the same thing.

Al Plemer ran over to pick Johnny up and to start him on the right road to pedestrianism. Zimm was crying. Johnny could't understand it. He was laughing. He remarked to Zimm: "Didn't you ever see anybody knocked out before?"

Zimm may have been crying for Kilbane. Or he may have been weeping because he expected Johnny to retire after this fight and to be his sole heir to the featherweight title.

Zimm is Kilbane's sparring partner and fights exactly like John. Now, if he wants the title, he has to grab it from Crik.

Zimm was still crying as Kilbane went down the aisle shaking hands and laughing with entire strangers.

He had done one thing correct.

If you want to laugh in New York, you've got to laugh with strangers.

U. S. District Attorney Says 30 Are Involved In Arms Transaction

munications between attorney and client.

FIREWORKS BEGIN

Mr. Husar immediately rose to his feet and read the subpoena, pointing out that it called on Mr. Franklin to produce all papers, letters, telegrams, documents, and contracts signed by or addressed to Capt. Kearney or by Mayer, Gow, Roth, Willemsen, Baker, Mr. or Mrs. Stein, Besoir, Horowitz, Walduck or other persons. Mr. Husar contended that the documents were not privileged—even the fact that Franklin was acting as attorney for Kearney or his company had to be proved.

"The Government believes that these documents, etc. refer to a recent arms deal in Korea although they may refer to potatoes or other vegetables," Mr. Husar declared. The Government would know what such words refer to by means of the secret code in our possession. Even though documents passing between Kearney and Franklin might be privileged Judge Franklin does not represent all these other people and any documents referring to them cannot be considered privileged.

"Judge Franklin," replied Mr. Schuhl, "cannot disclose these documents, and as Mr. Husar knows, documents handed to an attorney by a client cannot be disclosed without the consent of the client. They are documents which even Captain Kearney could not be compelled to produce, for in a criminal case the Court cannot compel a defendant to produce a document or documents which might incriminate him."

"In other words," replied Mr. Husar, "although Mr. Schuhl says in one breath that the documents do not amount to a row of pins, yet in another breath he is frightened to death that they are going to be produced and they will incriminate the defendant. The main thing here is to produce these documents and have the Court scrutinise them. If they do not incriminate they may not be worth a row of pins. The Government is entitled to every document. There is no evidence that Judge Franklin represents Kearney as his attorney. There may be many documents, contracts, and letters existing and signed between Kearney, Roth, Gow, Mayer, Mr. and Mrs. Stein. The Court cannot assume that there is any confidential document or communication existing between these people other than between Kearney and Judge Franklin. It is for Judge Franklin to show that he is the legal representative of Captain Kearney."

FRANKLIN TESTIFIES

Judge Franklin then went into the witness box and testified that he had represented Captain Kearney and The Kearney Company, Inc. He had in his possession various files of documents, etc., of The Kearney Company, Inc. He said he did not represent Mayer, Gow or Horrowitz, nor had he any papers belonging to them. He had known Baker since his connection with The Kearney Company, but had no papers belonging to him. He had represented Roth before in a divorce proceeding and had therefore some of his papers. All documents of The Kearney Company in his possession were those that came to him from a representative of The Kearney Company. He did not know who that representative was.

Cross-examined by Mr. Husar, Judge Franklin said he had tried to locate Captain Kearney since the warrant for his arrest was issued. Asked whether he considered he was representing Kearney in the criminal action, Judge Franklin replied that he had no instructions. He hesitated to divulge the documents turned over to him as the case was a criminal one and the law held that possession of all papers by an attorney for a client was equivalent to possession by a client.

Continuing, Judge Franklin said: "I have read all the documents on my file concerning the transactions I have handled. The file of papers now referred to was turned over to me by an employee and agent of The Kearney Company and I have not gone through it."

Mr. Husar: I think you filed the voluntary petition for the winding up of The Kearney Company. From whom did you receive your instructions?—That was the petition of Kearney Company, Inc. I had received instructions from Captain Kearney personally.

OBJECTIONS

You had no papers or documents belonging to Walduck personally?—In the file of The Kearney Company there may be documents signed by Walduck.

Have you any objection to handling these over?—I have no objection except that these papers came into my possession as attorney for The Kearney Company. They are the property of the Company. I do not feel that I should turn them over.

Have you any papers that belong to Baker personally?—I have none. The Kearney Company file is a voluminous file. This file was turned over to Mr. Faison, and I do not know what he said when he turned it over to Mr. Faison as to the nature of the contents. I am not sure who turned it over to Mr. Faison as I was absent at the time.

Was it Baker or Gow? I could not say.

Do you know Willemsen?—Yes, he accompanied me to Korea.

Asked whether he had any objection to handing over the papers concerning him, Judge Franklin again pleaded that it was a privileged communication, and unless he got Captain Kearney's permission or the court ordered him to do so he could not turn any document over.

NOT ACQUAINTED

Judge Franklin said he did not know Mrs. Stein until yesterday when he met her in Court. He had heard of Mr. Stein but did not know him personally.

Were any documents turned over to you after Kearney went away?—The file was turned over to Mr. Faison in Kearney's and my absence.

In short, you object to turning over these documents or any papers you have that are addressed to Captain Kearney or signed by him or by you in reply, Mr. Husar said, on the ground that it is privileged communication in which you as attorney want their permission, or the Court's to these being turned over?—Yes.

Mr. Schuhl: As far as Judge Franklin is concerned he, as attorney in the matter, is willing to put all these documents and papers in a sealed box to be lodged in the vaults of the Court until Kearney's permission is secured. We make that offer. There is nothing incriminating in these documents. It is for Mr. Husar to accept or reject the offer.

Mr. Husar: If Mr. Schuhl tells me where I can get Kearney it might expedite matters.

Mr. Husar: As a lawyer I understand Judge Franklin's position. As a prosecutor I must say that the answer of Judge Franklin that he has not gone through the file shows that Judge Franklin does not know what those documents are. We know. The mere fact that Judge Franklin says that he does not know what these papers are shows that the file is comprehensive and cannot constitute what is known to the law as privileged communications.

Commissioner Lurton interposed briefly to remark that Mr. Husar was correct in assuming that if every document were to be considered privileged no such evidence would find its way into court and asked Mr. Schuhl what he thought a search warrant was for.

"In this case Mr. Husar likes it to go on a little fishing excursion," Mr. Schuhl replied.

"And look what he caught," the District Attorney chuckled.

Commissioner Lurton then announced that he wished to study the question thoroughly and would hand down a decision at 10 o'clock this morning. The sheaf of papers that caused all the fireworks was then sealed in Commissioner Lurton's presence and deposited with Clerk of the Court Chapman.

THE STEIN ANGLE

Mr. Schuhl then requested a reduction of bail for Mrs. Stein, who since her arrest has been held in custody with her baby at the Victoria Nursing Home while an amah looks after the two older children at the Burlington Hotel. He requested that she be released on her own recognisance.

"This is just the beginning of a series of cases with far-reaching ramifications," Mr. Husar asserted, "and I will oppose reduction of the bail. It is now G.$2,000. Surely that is a reasonable figure. If it were not for the fact that she is a woman and has three children I would demand much higher bail. Her presence is important in other cases that will come up."

Commissioner Lurton felt that the bail was too high and announced that he would reduce it to G.$1,000 as he did not think she would leave Shanghai. Mr. Schuhl accepted the reduction and said that he would furnish the bond so that she could be released immediately.

He also granted Mr. Schuhl's application for trial at an earlier date, setting it for Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, instead of Thursday.

THE MALONEY ANGLE

Mr. Schuhl then asked that bail be set for Maloney in the sum of $1,000.

"What's the matter? Has Maloney three children too?" Mr. Husar demanded sarcastically. "As a matter of fact," he continued, "the Maloney case is not before the court. It has not been called up, and therefore nothing can be done in the matter."

Mr. Schuhl appealed to the Court.

Commissioner Lurton upheld Mr. Husar, asserting that the case had not been called before him and that he had no judicial knowledge that Maloney was under arrest.

"Well, he is!" Mr. Schuhl exclaimed.

"We know nothing about it," said the District Attorney.

"He certainly didn't walk in!" said Mr. Schuhl.

Eventually Commissioner Lurton agreed to take official cognisance of the facts and set Maloney's bail at $2,000.

SEEK STEIN

Yesterday also Mr. Husar telegraphed to Mukden where Stein is now supposed to be and ordered his arrest on the same charges as Mrs. Stein, Kearney and Maloney, and it is thought he was taken into custody last night.

No information concerning his against whom were the proceedings return to Shanghai has as yet been to the story, has not yet been divulged.

Capt. Kearney, the charges arrested, according to informa- tion last night.

French President, On Motor Tour, Visits Noted Places

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 13.—The last day of the Presidential tour began with a visit to the celebrated hospices of Beaune. Traversing the famous vineyards of Burgundy, the Presidential train motored to Dijon where a banquiet was given in their honor by the Municipality. M. Millerand paid a tribute to Dijon, which had always been a home of culture, recalling the foundation of the University of Burgundy in 1723. He mentioned the efforts made by the 3rd Republic to develop the various branches of instruction in France. After having presided at the celebration of the Bicentenary of the Faculty of Law M. Millerand visited the university city and the new laboratory.

The Bey of Tunis was given a reception today at the Lyons Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber of Deputies today voted advances of 300,000,000 francs to the Jugo-Slav Government and applauded the deputy, M. Marin, who declared that Serbia, devastated as our invaded regions had been, well deserved the help given her.

The Senate today voted credits for the erection of a memorial to the sailors killed in the war, adopted a bill for the creation of offices for verification and compensation in connection with the application of the Trianon Treaty and approved the convention between France and Poland with regard to property, rights and interests and also the convention between France and Poland regarding the regulations for the naphtha industry.

Owing to the heat the Minister of War has abandoned the 14th of July Review on Paris this year.

Havas announces from Lausanne that the Allied and Turkish delegates deliberated for 3½ hours in private today on certain points in dispute, particularly that of the withdrawal of the Allied fleets.

A sum of 803,000,000 marks has been seized from the Reichsbank at Bochum.

The newspapers publish a note, addressed on July 11 to the Soviet Commissary of Foreign Affairs, on the subject of the claims raised by Russia with regard to the Russian warships at present in the port of Bizerta. The French Government repeats that it has not seized ships of war and the Russian Fleet in the Black Sea, but has simply given them asylum in one of its ports. The Soviet Government, not being recognised, is not in a position to claim the vessels which the French Government has provisionally agreed, to preserve and entertain for the account of the Russian State. While reserving to itself eventually the right of retaining properties of the Russian State in the event of the latter not fulfilling its international engagements, the French Government places no obstacle in the way of commerce between the two nations as the Soviets affirm. In its absolute respect for private property it has, on the contrary, abstained from replying by acts of retortion to the brutal and unprecedented methods of spoliation of which French nationals have been victims in Russia. Russians can, therefore, in all security carry on with commercial transactions in France.

Reports from Saragosa state that floods resulting from a storm last night have caused serious damage throughout Aragon. Trains on the Barcelona line are no longer running and those on other lines are enormously delayed.

Five Events For Yacht Races Today

The members of the Shanghai Yacht Club were again disappointed Thursday for the bi-weekly harbor race had to be postponed on account of lack of wind although the rain had stopped.

Weather permitting they will hold their fourth ordinary race Saturday when the following Yachts will leave Customs River Police Hulk at 2 p.m.

Yacht	Handicap per mile
Seagull	8 secs.
Violet	13 ,,
Oistos	22 ,,
Ella	53 ,,
Haikuan	1 min 40 sec.

The course wil be up river round the mark boat anchored at Pagoda Creek to port and back to finish at starting point. The distance is twelve miles while the time limit is 7 p.m. The ebb tide will begin at Shanghai at 3 p.m.

Young Composer To Lead Own Oratorio With Mighty Chorus

Paris.—Rota Rinaldi is not yet twelve, but next October he will conduct the orchestra at the first performance of his oratorio, "The Childhood of St. John the Baptist."

The City of Tourcoing, near Lille, will produce the work the little Italian began when he was only ten. It consists of a prologue, orchestral connections, and choruses of angels, men and crowds, the sounds of birds and the murmur of trees.

Rota's precocious ability has alarmed his mother, who fears his general education will be dwarfed by his concentration on music. So despite his achievement, she has decided to take him away from the Milan Conservatory, where he has been pursuing advanced musical studies, and send him to an ordinary boys' high school.

MEXICAN LAND LAWS BLOCK RECOGNITION

BY EDWIN J. CLAPP
(New York American)

Mexico City.—Negotiations between the American and the Mexican members of the mixed commission looking to American recognition of the Obregon Government drag slowly along, and nobody knows how much longer they will continue.

The chief reason why the proceedings drag is the difficulty of finding the precise form in which to give Mr. Hughes the guarantees he seeks in regard to American capital. It is impossible for any one to be long in Mexico and not realise the difficult position in which Senor Obregon finds himself. He inherited from Carranza the 1917 constitution, which the common people of Mexico regard as their bill of rights. Neither Obregon's nor any other Government could last if it appeared to be conniving again to deliver Mexico over to exploiters, foreign or domestic.

The 1917 constitution, in a very natural reaction against the land owners who had exploited Mexico, went far on the road to communism and the expropriation of property without compensation. The United States recognises that Mexico has a perfect right to adopt a constitution ordering a division of the larger landed estates among the peons, and decreeing that the subsoil resources, mineral and oil, were the property of the Mexico people.

INSISTS ON PAYMENT

What Mr. Hughes insists upon is that these and other provisions of the constitution do not, without compensation, take lands, oils and minerals under land away from Americans who in good faith bought these properties before 1917. Until then title to the land carried with it property rights to all resources under it, clear down to the center of the earth, just as in the United States.

Based upon the Federal Constitution, laws, especially State laws, have been passed which have ordered that lands, including those of foreigners, shall be handed over to Mexicans without present compensation at all or with compensation in doubtful bonds. To be sure, there is a clause in the constitution that the above provisions shall not be retroactive, and the Federal Supreme Court has rendered five decisions declaring the non-retroactive clause takes precedence over the expropriation clauses. But the American Secretary of State wants guarantees that the unconstitutional laws and decrees shall become inoperative, and that none like them will be passed in the future.

WOULD HELP MEXICO

As a matter of fact, this contention of the American delegate is intended for the welfare of the Mexican people. Less advantage from the guarantees will go to American and other foreign capital, which will not lose investments honestly made. The greater advantage will go to Mexico, because new foreign capital, now timid, will be drawn into this economic vacuum.

The President has gathered round him the support of all the Liberal elements of the country, all except a handful, who hope against hope that the old days of peonage will return. Every day Obregon grows stronger and more able to enforce the Federal will upon the individual States. He is vitally interested in the successful outcome of the present conference.

The representatives will yet find way to satisfy Secretary Hughes's demand for guarantees without incurring the suspicion of straining the constitution for the advantage of foreigners or selling out to them.

There is every reason to believe that the American delegation will be sympathetic and successful in helping the Mexican commission to find a formula which, without offending Mexico's pride in any way or affecting her sovereignty, will prevent her from repudiating capital as a partner in the past and enable her to attract new partners in the future.

THE WEB

(From The Westminster Gazette)

Slowly from point to point
Her web the spider weaves,
Hanging her flimsy net,
Trembling, between two leaves.

A delicate, swinging trap,
Work of minutest care,
Blown by the merest breath
To infinite air.

Thus music thread-like spins
From mind to mind her weft,
Using as simple aids
Thin strings and fingers deft.

Hangs it between two worlds,
A fragile, lovely snare,
To lure the ventures lone
Who trespass there.

E. HAMILTON-FELLOWS.

The Correct Feeding of Infants

No attempt to provide a correct system for the progressive feeding of Infants was ever successfully carried out until the "Allenburys" Series of Infants Foods were introduced. So successful have the "Allenburys" Foods Nos. 1, 2 and 3 proved, that whenever a child is denied the privilege of the mother's milk they are indispensable.

Write for our book "Infant Feeding and Management."

Conseil d'Administration Municipale de la Concession Francaise de Changhai

NOTICE

MUNICIPAL LOAN OF 1923

8.000 debentures of Tls. 100 each (issued at Tls. 97 each)

Rate of interest 6% per annum

The "Conseil d'Administration Municipale de la Concession Francaise de Changhai" hereby invite subscriptions for 8.000 debentures of Tls. 100 each, issued at Tls. 97 each according to the resolution passed at their General Meeting on the 14th May 1923.

The conditions on which the Debenture Certificates will be issued are:

1°.—The Debenture Certificates are transferable, and the person whose name is entered in the Register of Debenture Certificate or Certificates, shall alone be recognised and treated by the Council as the lawful and rightful holder and owner of such Debenture Certificate or Certificates.

2°.—The Debentures will be issued at Tls. 97 each.

3°.—The Debentures will be redeemable at par (Tls. 100 each) in not less than 10 years and not more than 30 years, from 1st December 1933 and according to the figures determinated by the Council.

4°.—The Debentures will bear interest at 6% per annum, payable on the 31st day of May and 30th day of November in each year, when interest warrants will be issued to the registered owners.

5°.—The Debenture Certificates will be issued and bear interest from 1st July 1923.

6°.—Applications for Debentures will be received at the Secretary's Office, Rue du Consulat, from June 20 next.

A cheque representing the amount of debentures asked for and payable on June 30th must be deposited at the same time.

7°.—Applications for Debentures under 97 will not be recognised by the Council.

8°.—For further informations, apply to Mr. P. Legendre, Secretary, French Municipal Council.

Shanghai, 31st May 1923.

By order,
P. LEGENDRE
Secretary.

Argentine And Spain Soon To have Aero Line

London, July 12.—Details of the first Atlantic airship service between Spain and Argentina have just been made public by the London Daily Chronicle, which says that it may soon be possible to bridge the 5,000 miles between the two continents in three and a half days. The service will operate between Seville and Buenos Aires, and Zeppelin aircraft will be used.

There will be terminal airdromes, mooring masts, repair sheds, and hydrogen factories at Seville and at Buenos Aires. In addition, emergency landing grounds will be laid out at the Canary Islands and at Cordoba, in the Argentine.

BUILD FOUR SHIPS

On the American side of the Atlantic the hangars will be made on a revolving principle, because of the variability of the wind. Four airships are being built to inaugurate the scheme, and it is anticipated that service will begin next summer. It also is probable that arrangements will be made to link up Seville direct with London by an airplane service.

The airships, fitted with nine engines, each developing 400 horsepower, will carry 40 passengers and 11 tons of mails and merchandise. There will be two simultaneous flights a week in each direction, and the time taken to cross the Atlantic will be three days and 16 hours. Passengers will have all the comforts of an Atlantic liner, without the disadvantage of sea sickness.

SKILLED PILOTS

The ships will have a speed of 82 miles an hour. Zeppelin pilots who have not less than 1,000 successful flights to their credit will be engaged to operate the craft. Each airship will carry six pilots and a commander.

Powerful wireless sets will be fitted into each ship, thus it will be possible to keep in touch with 45 weather stations on the coasts of Spain, Africa, America, the Canary Islands, Cape Verde and Fernando Noronha, as well as with ships at sea.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

July 13, 1923

Spot bar silver was up ⅛d. and forward 1-16d. in London yesterday. The New York price advanced to 63 cents and the London New York cross rate to 458¾. Our official quotations here today were unchanged from yesterday and our market opened steady and firmed up somewhat during the day.

The lowest rates at which business in Sterling was done were 3-0½ for July, 3-0⅝ for August and 3-0 5-16 September. The lowest rates for Gold Dollars were 69⅞ for July delivery, 69¾ for August and 69⅝ for forward. However, in the afternoon the market was steadier and closed with sellers of Sterling at 3/0½ for July, 3/0⅝ for August and 3/0½ for September.

There were sellers of Gold Dollars at the close at 70¼ for July, and 70⅛ for forward delivery. There were sellers of Yen at 69⅝ for July delivery, 69¾ for August and 69⅞ for forward.

Banks were quoting 3/1⅛ and 72 for Sterling and Gold Dollar Bills for near delivery and 3/1⅛ and 71¾ for forward. There were buyers of Franc bills at 1210.

India and China bought silver in London yesterday and the market is reported as closing steady. New York also report their market as steady.

Wants Movie Director To Pay His Alimony

Mrs. Maud H. Dillon

MRS. MAUD H. Dillon, former wife of John J. Dillon, Los Angeles motion picture director, told the courts there her husband was squandering so much money on Mrs. Dillon No. 2 that he had not been paying her alimony of $500 a month.

Modern "Wall Papering"

A complete change in the mural decorations of one's entire dwelling in less than five minutes is made possible by an ingenious invention of the General Electric Company.

The new device, operated entirely by electric lighting is capable of throwing as many as fifty distinct wall paper designs on the walls of the room in less than sixty seconds, with practically no human effort save the movement of a tinted glass slide on which are arranged various colored daubings.

The effect is obtained by the use of a specially made magic lantern box, which, when completed, many be concealed in the room and arranged so that the wall design will be focused perfectly and changed at will. The colors as well as the designs of the decorations may be varied according to the effect desired. Through the play of brilliantly colored designs the home may be brightened, and an atmosphere of according to the effect desired. quiet and sombre tones may be made to predominate according to the occasion for which a "setting" is required.—Foreign Press Service.

Cotton Reports

In their weekly report on the Shanghai Cotton market, Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son write as follows:

China Cotton:—The Market during the past week has been unsettled, with violent fluctuations causing considerable nervousness owing to the torrential rains experienced during the whole of the week. Nine-tenths of the trading of the week has been the swapping of contracts among members of the Exchange, or among outside local professionals. Domestic Mills and Japan who contribute to the aggregate making of the market, have been conspicuous by their absence.

On the whole, we continue to see little or no inducement to take the "Bull" side of the market, but no precipitate decline is likely occur until the crop is well under way. While the technical position of the market may offer opportunities for occasional scalping operations, the progress of the crop will continue to be the chief basis for important price changes.

CORRESPONDENCE

Tungchow, July 9:—Heavy rains over this territory, low lands flooded; far work stopped. Dry, hot weather is badly needed, otherwise the outlook will be serious.

Shanghai and Districts, July 10:—We are having too much rain, and the weather has been too cool, cotton is making too much weed and not fruiting well. Clear, warm weather is urgently needed in order to finish chopping out, and to free the crop from grass.

Chekiang Province, July 9:—There has been too much rain during the past few days for the young plant. So far we hear of no serious damage from the cold snap we are having. It is of utmost importance that we have "cotton weather" without further delay.

Yangtsze Valley, July 10:—Crop outlook favorable. Acreage increased about 30 percent.

Shantung and Chili Provinces, July 7:—There has been no rain in these two cotton centers. Conditions would be entirely satisfactory if we could get a gentle rain to bring the cotton to a good stand.

Shensi and Shansi Provinces, July 7:—Weather fine. Crop progressing very favorable.

Yarn:—During the past week, the yarn market has been on the easy side due to the unsettled political situation. From present indications it seems that there are no signs of any activity for the near future and a steady market is looked forward to.

SPUNT'S REPORT

Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows in their weekly report on the cotton market:

China Cotton:—Our market during the past week remained practically in the same position as last reported in that price of available stocks of old crop cotton have not shown any palpable variation either one way or the other, although the demand for same was approximately nil. A prolongation of such circumstances is mainly ascribable to the continued stagnancy in the yarn trade. However, a fairly large business, on a more or less speculative basis, may be recorded as having been done at the Cotton Exchange, for distant deliveries, at prices showing a rise of about Tls 1.50 per picul higher than that contracted for during the previous week. This appreciation has evolved on the assumption that the unceasing rainy weather now being experienced is to a more or less extent damaging the growing crop and consequently will affect both the quality and quantity of the new season's ultimate yield.

A notable feature at this state of the season is the absence of any contracts for new season's cotton on the part of Spinners in general and which attitude on their part manifests their desire to avoid a recurrence of the predicament in which they were placed during the last season by the many delinquencies in the deliveries of cotton as per contract terms, and in many instances no deliveries whatever took place, the dealers having disappeared, owing to their inability to meet the differences between the low contract prices and those, i.e. the high prices, prevailing at the time when deliveries of the cotton became due. Tone of the market, Steady.

To France

OUR greetings and good wishes to France on this, her great national holiday! Not only to France as a land of beauty and the home of humor, logic and art, but to the men and women of France who through the ages and by their valor have saved her to civilisation and made her the great, heroic figure which she is today and which she will ever be!

Peoples of other races may disapprove her present policy in the Ruhr basin but while disapproving they cannot withhold or suppress the admiration awakened in their hearts by the bravery with which the French people stand together and act together for what they consider to be their rights and their safety as a nation not only desiring but determined to live. France, the world should know by this time, is not only daring, but she is not to be deceived where her own life is at stake. And she is determined to live.

More we could not say.

Some of our readers may however recall Charles Van Loan's classic story of the town bully and the little fellow who refused to knuckle down to him. When the little chap got out of the hospital he went after the big man again, and gave him a harder fight. Following the sixth fight, the bully left town. And all was peace.

We subjoin an editorial from a recent edition of The New York Tribune, a newspaper of historic American tradition and prestige. The editorial we think expresses what many Americans are thinking. It was printed on June 14, America's National Flag Day:

"Those devotees of the German cause who have convinced themselves that M. Poincare is a Napoleon bent on annexing to France the Ruhr and any other sections of Germany he can pry loose are beyond the reach of reason. Most Americans realise that if M. Poincare were a Napoleon and bent on annexation, he would not have wasted time in talk, but would have acted. He has the military power to gobble up as much of Germany as he desires. Why has he not done so?

"The simple and sensible explanation is that accepted by Americans generally: that he means exactly what he says. He has repeatedly denied that France had annexation aims and he has consistently advocated a very clear and simple policy, to wit, the gradual evacuation of the Ruhr as the bill for reparations is paid. Germany did that in 1871. France, with her allies, is proposing to do it in the years to come.

"M. Poincare has never done anything inconsistent with this theory. To the contrary, his acts agree entirely with his words. He has insisted and he insists upon just one thing, holding of the Ruhr as a guaranty. He therefore insists that the more or less passive resistance organised in the Ruhr from Berlin cease before talk of figures begins. That amounts to saying that the Ruhr is the essential guaranty, and, being essential, he will not debate it. What could be fairer or clearer?

"If there is any other guaranty that will hold the German people to the execution of a promise it is for the Germans to bring it forward. Thus far they have not done so. Their talk of mortgages is nonsense. Perhaps a supervising control of all German finances might serve as an effective guaranty, but it would surely be less acceptable to the Germans than the holding of the Ruhr as collateral. What other guaranty than the Ruhr is there available?"

THE TSINPU RUMORS

Nanking, July 9.

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS.

Sir.—We are requested by the adjutant's office of the Tuchun's yamen to call your attention to the fact that the news referring to another possible bandit outrage by Japanese intrigue along the Tsinpu line which appeared in your paper dated July 4, 1923, is absolutely groundless.

We would appreciate it if you kindly publish the above-mentioned in your press.

With thanks,
Sincerely,
Foreign Office, Nanking.

The item referred to read as follows:

According to the Chinese press, Tuchun Chi Shih-yuan of Kiangsu, in a letter to General Chen Tiao-yuan of Hsuchow alleged that a number of Japanese rowdies disguised as Chinese have been found in the railway zone of the Tsinpu line in Shantung, Anhui and Kiangsu. These Japanese are intriguing with the bandits in this district to conduct another raid of the railway, coaches, the message said.

Bobbie And His Pa

BY WILLIAM F. KIRK

I was reeding a butiful love story last nite, sed Ma to Pa. Wen I finnished it, sed Ma, I think I had a higher idee of the nobillity of wimmen, sed Ma, than what I ever had.

Sure, sed Pa. Pa was reeding the Box Score, that is what Pa always reeds the first thing wen he cums hoam summer nites, the Box Score.

Yes, sed Ma, this story tould how a luvly woman gaiv up everything in the wurld, munny, sosaiety, sosishun, and frends, sed Ma, to run away and marry a poor mail carry-er, sed Ma. He was so civil and kind to her, that is why she married him, sed Ma. I wonder why moar men cant be moar civil, sed Ma.

It is easy for mail carryers to be civil, sed Pa.

I doant see why, sed Ma.

Beekaus thay are in the Civil Servis, sed Pa. Ha Ha, sed Pa. That is a good wheeze, sed Pa.

It is not easy for me to be civil, sed Ma, wen I heer such cheep how-mor, sed Ma.

Maybe sum day I will not be neer with my sparkelling wit, sed Pa. Then son will weep teers of anner-guish, sed Pa.

I will try to bare up under the awful blow, sed Ma. The nabors all think I wud be a butiful widdow, sed Ma.

I think you wud at that, sed Pa, but you wud look kind of sad wen you ree-bected that never aggenn cud you ever find another souper-man like what I am, sed Pa.

It is a wonder that you did not pass away wen you springed that joak about civil mail carryers beeing in the Civil Servie, sed Ma to Pa.

Wasent that a pritty good joak? sed Pa.

It showed me that in sum re-specks you nevver growed up, sed Ma.

Do you mean to inner-fer that I am simp-el? sed Pa.

I wuddent be so harsh, sed Ma. What is it, harsh? I sed.

Harsh means crule and ruff and rude and hard, Bobbie, sed Ma.

Like my school teecher? I sed.

I hoap not, Bobbie, sed Ma. I wuddent like to think that I am sending my shrinking littel blossom of a boy to a ruff teacher, sed Ma.

I aint no Mossom of a boy, I sed. I am hard boiled, I sed.

Indeed you are hard boiled, Bobbie, sed Ma. Little hard boiled boys need a good hard thingel now and then, also, too, sed Ma. So I dident say any moar.

A Column Of Verse

MOONLIGHT

(From The London Mercury)

What time the meanest brick and stone
Take on a beauty not their own,
And past the flaw of builded wood
Shines the intention whole and good,
And all the little homes of man
Rise to a dimmer, nobler span;
When color's absence gives escape
To the deeper spirit of the shape,

* * *

—Then do the clouds like silver flags
Stream out above the tattered crags,
And black and silver all the coast
Marshals its hundred and rocky host,
And headlands striding somberly
Buttress the land against the sea.
—The darkened land, the brightening wave—
And moonlight slants through Merlin's cave.

V. SACKVILLE-WEST.

WINTER FLAME

(From The London Mercury)

What care if tropic harbors swirl,
Grape-colored in the morning shine,
Or through red-bloomed pom'granates curl
The tendrils of the weighted vine?

What care that beauty dwells supreme
In men and women, towns and ships,
Set dark against the gold of dream:
Temples, bright boats and carven lips?

What care for hillsides, where the heat
Puffs acrid from the glowing stone?
I've heard beneath my head the beat
Of your strong heart, which is my own.

What care though fire and color flared
Eternal from the coral skies,
To one who in this bleakness dared
To claim the secrets of your eyes?

DOROTHY WELLESLEY.

THREE O'CLOCK—MORNING

(From The Chapbook)

The jewel-blue electric flowers
Are cold upon their iron trees;
Upraised the deadly harp of rails
Whines for the intervals of ease;
The stones keep all their daily speech
Buried, but can no more forget
Than would a water vacant beach
The hour when it was wet.

A whitened few wane out like moons,
Ghastly from some torn edge of shade;
A drowning one, a reeling one,
And one still loitering after trade.
On high the candor of a clock
Portions the dark with solemn sound;
The burden of the bitten rock.
Moans up from underground.
Far down the street a shutting door

Echoes the yesterday that fled
Among the days that should have been,
Which people cities of the dead.
The banners of the steam unfold
Upon the towers to meet the day.
The lights go out in red and gold
But Time goes out in gray.

RIDGELY TORRENCE.

THREE AGES OF WOMAN

(From Color)

She passed; she left the heart aflame:
So wood'land wild, so diffident.
She passed, with children, fireside-tame,
Satisfied, indifferent.
Till laughing, through a crowd she came:
Colored, casual, insolent.

BENVENUTO'S VALENTINE

(From The Yale Review)

Not for the child that wanders home
So wasted by barbaric kings,
So wearied by imperial Rome,
That he will clasp my apron strings.

Not for the ghost that never is
And never will be known by me,
Whose heel is on the precipice
Before its print has left the sea.

And not for dearling Harlequin
Spinning in stars of diamond shape,
Nor Hamlet, expistite and thin
As moonbeams in an inky cape.

Not for the legend latest-born
Of Chivalry and Virgin, whom
Roland has knighted with a horn
And Richard with a sprig of broom.

Not even for the man who climbed
A thousand miles to thrust a torch
Among forgotten fagots, rimed
By winter in an iron porch.

But for the thought that wrought and planned
Such intricate and crystal things,
My kiss is set upon your hand
As softly as a silver ring's.

An International History Of The World War

Two hundred and fifty miles of shelves would be needed to hold the records of the war's effects on European conditions; and with this mass of material the average man could not cope at all, for he would have to live five thousand years to read his way through it.

The work being done therefore by the Division of Economics and History of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in transforming these miles of documents into the "Economic and Social History of the World War," thus making the records one of the most critical periods of the world's history readable and available to the public is of a quite spectacular importance. One hundred and fifty volumes will emerge from the process of sorting and collating, and students or average reader will have comparatively easy access to material which should not be ignored in the process of world readjustments.

MAY GIVE REMEDY

But the 150 volumes of the series are not mere digests of documents. Under the general editorship of Mr. James T. Shotwell, historian and Professor of history at Columbia University, and recently chosen by the Nobel Institute to inaugurate its series of annual lectures on international problems, specialists in economics, sociologists, scientists, statesmen, and men of affairs are working together to make of this history not merely a compendium of facts, but a document which, in throwing light on the long illness from which Europe has suffered, will serve, if saying can, to prevent a recurrence of it.

Just what has the war done to the civilisation that existed on Europe before 1914? This is the question which gives direction to this tremendous enterprise which is unique in several respects.

Nothing approaching it in comprehensiveness and thoroughness in treating a single period of history has ever been undertaken before. Never before have the authors and editors engaged on historical work numbered such a large proportion of men of affairs and men of action. The writers of monographs include economists and historians, statesmen and public servants in charge of wartime administration, presidents of large corporations and railway systems, and representatives of labor, lawyers, soldiers, diplomats, scientists and men of letters. The project is also unique in that the social and economic stories of the Allies, the Central Powers and the neutrals are told. There is one exception. The series does not include studies of the United States. This, in addition to what is already in print, was considered to be too much an undertaking, and if the economic history of the United States were to be written it would have to be treated in a separate series.

THE PROPAGANDA

The 150 volumes are expected to contain no propaganda. They do not deal with the causes of the war or with military operations. The subject generally do not touch on fields where bitter controversies have raged. Ten volumes of the British series, which will consist of about thirty volumes, have been published already and others will come out rapidly.

Dr. Shotwell, who has spent nearly all his time abroad since 1919 in forming editorial boards and selecting authors, is editing the British series and also the other publications in the French, German and Italian languages. These continental volumes will first be printed in the original languages; others, dealing with the smaller States in that one of the four "world languages" most appropriate. Thus, the Hungarian series first appears in German. Later the whole series will be issued in English in condensed form. A five-volume survey will be prepared for the non-specialist reader.

CARNEGIE'S IDEALS

This huge enterprise in the cause of peace, is financed from the millions dedicated by Andrew Carnegie to the promotion of international peace. No direct emotional or sentimental reaction is expected from these 150 volumes. No immediate result of any kind is looked for. It is intended to put a record of the economic and social costs of the war into the hands of those who can use it. In this way it is intended through the medium of historians, teachers, statesmen and political thinkers to record for future generations the varied damage to civilisation that was accomplished by the war.

STRONG SUPPORT

The strongest comment in favor of the practicalness of this idea is probably to be found in the names of the men who planned it and in the names of the statesmen, busy men of affairs, scientists and others in Europe who are executing it.

The Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace is Elihu Root who has played a leading part in supporting the plans for the historical project.

The Chairman of the British Editorial Board is Sir William Beveridge, Director of the London School of Economics, who was largely responsible during the war for the mechanism of British food rationing. Others on this board are Thomas Jones, Secretary to the British Cabinet and J. M. Keynes, the well-known economist.

On the German Editorial Board are G. A. Bauer, former Chancellor of the German Empire; Carl Duisberg, head of the Chemical industries of Germany; Hermann Bucher, Managing-Director of the Union of German Industries and practically head of the manufacturing trusts of Germany; Carl Melchior, the financial specialist, and Professor Albrecht Mendelssohn-Bartholdy editor-in-chief of the monumental series of diplomatic documents which the German Foreign Office is publishing, and Professor Max Sering of the University of Berlin formerly head of the Scientific Commission for a war history on which the German Government spent a million and a half gold marks during the war.

The French Editorial Board is composed of Professor Charles Gide of the University of Paris; M. Arthur Fontaine, Director of the Mines of the Sarre and President of the State Railways of France; Professor Henri House and Professor Charles Rist. Names of European reputation are listed among the editors of the publications of Austria, Hungary, Czecho Slovakia, Jugoslavia and Portugal.

Now Is The Time For You to Plod and Study

BY J. J. MUNDY

You have a mighty fine position in life and how you got it is a mystery to you when you realise how you lack some of the greatest essentials in knowledge and education that you really ought to have had.

You have slipped along all these years and side-stepped any position which would bring out your ignorance. You know enough about keeping your mouth shut so as not to expose your crude ideas or your lack of good English.

You have counted on a wise look to help you through.

But gradually a fear is gripping your heart when you are in the company, of those who have had greater advantages.

Just supposing certain questions should be asked of you, what would you say?

Many times of late this thought has come to you and with it the conscious feeling that you might have done a few things for yourself if you had been interested enough to study by yourself.

You have put off the thought and you dislike to take your rest and recreation time to plod and study, but it would be better for you if you could get your mind at rest before your thoughts leave deep lines which others can read in your face.

The Proposed Base At Singapore

BY LIEUT.-COL. REPINGTON

Mr. Amery has secured his vote for the proposed naval base at Singapore, but I hope that the Government will be in no hurry to sign its contracts until the Imperial Conference has reconsidered and adjudicated upon this important matter, which concerns very vitally the interests of Australia and New Zealand in war time.

We are all, as a rule, very willing to accept Admiralty opinion in all that concerns the Navy, but the construction of a great naval base, which may have to depend upon guns and troops for the weeks, if not months, which may intervene between an outbreak of war and the arrival of our Grand Fleet in the Pacific, opens up a number of questions which were scarcely touched upon in the debate, nor at the Imperial Conference in 1921, so far as the summary of the proceedings officially issued permits us to form a judgment.

Singapore does not figure in that summary, and the public mind is not prepared for secret decisions which may have been taken. Singapore is undoubtedly one of the most interesting strategic positions in the world in normal times of peace, owing to the volume of maritime trade which passes through it, and to its local topographical advantages. But it has not, in war, the importance of the Panama and the Suez Canals, nor of Gibraltar and the English Channel. It is not a compulsory entry or exit into or out of the Indian Ocean and the Pacific, and so we saw that though Rozhdestvensky took this route in 1905, Von Spee escaped from the Pacific by a different route, and there are, besides, numrous other courses which ships and fleets may select.

Now, assuming that we were at war with Japan, and our Grand Fleet were preparing to steam away to Singapore, it is not conceivable that the Japanese would not attempt to snap up this base before our Fleet arrived, and would not have their preparations made for the contingency. To make any other assumption would be to nurse oneself with illusions. Therefore Singapore must have not only "guns to defend itself against raids and some form of military garrison," as Mr. Amery admitted, but such defences, and such a large garrison, as would permit it to hold out for three months at least with its own resources.

Even if we assume that, owing to our greater foresight, or owing to any other reasons, the Grand Fleet were on the spot before the war began, can we truly say that the locality of Singapore offers those resources which such a huge armament requires for its sustained activity? For such a base and such an armament we need behind and around it a strong people of our own race. We need coal, oil, manufactories, food supplies, and all the other resources of civilisation, or else we are compelled to draw them from our home territory, which is a long way off. If our Grand Fleet had an offensive mission it would have to bring the troops needed for such an enterprise as the seizure and defence of a local base nearer to its objective, for the ports of Australia and New Zealand are also a long way off.

What, after all, do we seek in the Pacific? The defence of our Dominions there and the preservation of their maritime communications. It would be as sensible to go to Ireland to defend our Channel trade as to go to Singapore to defend the Anzac trade. What trade comes through Singapore that is indispensable in war? The tin and silk and pottery and manufactured goods of China and Japan we can quite well do without, and what concerns us most is the Anzac meat and wool, which would probably come by the Cape if hostile submarines were lurking in the archipelago between Singapore Australia.

But above all our object would be to protect Australia and New Zealand from attack. I can name no better place than Sydney Harbor for the assembly of a Grand Fleet with this object. There the Fleet would be amongst our own people, and with all their resources at its back. There, and at Melbourne, the armed forces necessary could most rapidly assemble, and the Fleet would be within easy reach of New Zealand in case it were threatened. In that great fringe of islands to the north our light craft can keep watch, and a complete chain of wireless connection can complete our defensive arrangements.

It seems to me that what we need at Singapore, and equally at Port Darwin, is a base for light craft—light fast cruisers, fast destroyers, oceangoing submarines, and aircraft, with a restricted system of defences and a garrison made stormproof. That would require a very different plan of construction from that required for a fleet of capital ships. It is not possible to pass by without consideration the criticism of Mr. Asquith on the plan, because no one has had a greater experience of the work of the Defence Committee or has labored more assiduously at its meetings. With his suggestion that capital ships may not be an important, and still less a predominant, feature of future war ten years hence, many will be in accord, and if he is right we shall have wasted both time and money on the Admiralty plan.

I do not think that the plan takes into account the war atmosphere and the legitimate anxieties of the Anzacs when they are threatened, and perhaps attacked, by a great Power. Their long coast lines, their want of serious naval forces, and the many points open to attack will call the Grand Fleet towards them at the first threat of war. They can very reasonably be asked to equip and prepare, in their own territory, the harbor appointed for the preliminary war station for our Fleet; but by going to Singapore we seem to have more regard for our China trade than for the defence of our Pacific Dominions, and we could not expect to find Anzac interest sufficiently aroused to make sacrifices to further the plan.

Finally, it is necessary to say that a great naval base without adequate defences both on land and sea is a contradiction in terms. It is on the land side, says Mahan, that coast fortresses must need to be made secure, for there nature does least for them. For all these reasons, given that we need a great naval base in the Pacific, it is wiser to place it near the center of powers of Australia, whether we argue from an Imperial, a strategic, or a diplomatic standpoint.—The Daily Telegraph.

Girlish Hardness

Mrs. George: Girls of eighteen seem to have no sympathy in make-up. It's Mamie I'm thinking of; she's absolutely cold blooded. You know that poor, little girl at the cigar store where you buy your tobacco? You know she's got into trouble, poor little thing, poor little fool. Last night we tried to get up a fund for her to give her a new start. And do you know what Mamie said? She said she wouldn't contribute a cent. She said the girl must be made an example, as a warning to others, and that she must suffer to teach her not to do it again. I wonder how Mamie would like it if she got into a fix and all her friends left her in the lurch.

Mr. George: Mamie's not the one to get into a fix; she's too hard. Girls of eighteen are generally hard just because they haven't had time to feel, and so they don't understand temptation. They haven't had time to suffer, and so they don't understand pain. Youth in some ways is an unpleasant mental disease, for which, fortunately, there is the cure of time. Mamie will be quite a different girl ten years hence.

Mrs. George: I don't know. I'm not sure that these hard-hearted girls with cut and dried ideas and set notions of their own will ever become sympathetic. People don't change much, they only learn to pretend, and if ten years hence Mamie does learn to be sweet and sympathetic it won't be real. She'll need a great deal more unhappiness than I wish her to make any impression on her at all. Of course you don't see that dear. You always see the bright side of a young and pretty girl.

magster now makes it no more necessary for the one who wishes to see the one best way to do work demonstrated, to make the record, than it is necessary to make a graphophone record in order to use such a record.

"This device is offered in the engineering and teaching professions without patents, with the hope that each community, school and library will have rolls of records of the superskill of the best demonstrator obtainable, regardless of where he may be and regardless of whether he is living at the time that his superskill is examined and imitated. Thus, it is possible now to present to the apprentices and workers of the world the chance to see the methods of the best workers available, in their chosen life work, which is a step toward their acquiring first habits, and automaticity in method.

"Knowledge of the one best way to do work disseminated throught the world would help to reduce the gigantic preventable waste which has been valuated as averaging more than twenty cents per day per worker in the United States."

More Truth Than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

"He kisses me no more," she said;
Her eyes and lashes moist with tears;
"I wonder if his love is dead,
His fondness blunted by the years?
Have I grown old before my time,
Or changed so much in other ways?
He used in pretty prose and rhyme
To make me happy with his praise.
"He gave me sweet proof that he cared
When once we said our brief good-byes;
His love was tenderly declared,
And there were longings in his eyes;
The things I touched, he used to say,
Were sacred, after that, to him;
How have I failed in any way?
My heart is warm, my figure slim."
He closed his desk, and got his hat,
His pretty secretary sighed;
"Don't fail," he said, "to 'phone to Pratt;"
"I will remember," she replied.
"That's all, I think," he said, and then
He hurried out, and closed the door;
She settled to her work again,
And frequently she sighed some more.
At home, he found things fine and fair,
The table spread, the dinner good;
His wife had dressed and fixed her hair,
And looked as lovely as she could.
"How come?" he asked, with glad surprise,
"And what's the reason for all this?"
The lady looked through misty eyes,
And, yes, by gosh, she got a kiss!

Rich And Poor—Quiet And Content

I.

"The rich and the poor meet together."—Prov. 22:2; Matt. 25:14—30.

Equality of condition is nowhere written in the Christian program. In fact, the parable of the talents implies a continuing state of inequality.

Yet the real curse of the one-talent man is not the poverty of his portion, but the meanness and selfishness of his heart.

He is a slacker, a shirker, a lock-out-man, a parasite.

His unused talent becomes a fungus.

That the rich and the poor are likely to be with us as long as men differ in ability and industry is clearly intimated in the Good Book as well as in the dry tables of political economy.

But the Good Book adds a prediction of woe to the rich if they suffer the pride of wealth to divide them from the poor.

"Go to, now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you.

"Your riches are corrupted and your garments are moth-eaten.

"Your gold and silver is cankered; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire."

II.

"Study to be quiet."—I. Thess. 4:11.

It is good to remember that the finest and most beautiful thing that can ever come to us cannot possibly be news to the public.

It is good to find the zest of life in that part of it which does not need, and will not bear, to be advertised.

It is food to talk with our friends, knowing that they will not report us; and to play with the children, knowing that no one is looking at us; and to eat our meat with gladness and singleness of heart.

It is good to recognise that the object of all true civilisation is that a man's house, rich or poor, shall be his castle, and not his dime museum.

If is good to enter into the spirit of Wordsworth's noble sonnet, and, turning back to "the good old cause," thank God for those safeguards of the private life which still preserve in many homes.

"Our peace, our fearful innocence.

And pure religion breathing household laws."

A Machine For Discovering The Best Way To Work

The "magster," an inexpensive stereoscopic motion-picture machine, which permits microscopic investigation of the motions performed by workers in each operation, has revealed that no man, however proficient in his work, has a method which cannot be improved upon, according to a report of the Fatigue Committee of the Society of Industrial Engineers, commented upon in Iron Trade.

In permitting a study of the worker's methods, the magster also reveals where they may be improved upon. "In thirty-seven years of study given to the technique of work operations, I have never found a method of any worker that could not be improved upon by substituting in part the method of some other worker," says Frank Gilbreth, of the "magster."

Inferior methods, he finds, are perpetuated from generation to generation because the apprentices are taught to imitate journeymen who have themselves imitated their predecessors. And with this handicap of bad methods, even skilful pupils are prevented from attaining the skill of experts.

The device he has perfected, a magazine filled with stereographs—hence the name—permit investigators and learners alike to see the super-expert's methods in infinite detail and in leisurely manner. In addition it gives the opportunity for devising more efficient tools and the saving of unnecessary expenditure of effort, as the machine permits the slowing down of motions made at the speed of practise to that of still pictures, and presents to learner not merely moving pictures but consecutive snapshots showing the elements of causes of skill.

"The magster," says the inventor, "is usable by those who do not have the opportunity, the super-experts, to demonstrate apparatus available, of the technical experience and knowledge to capture and record in complete detail the one best way to do work. It puts the long years of research, development and practise of micro-motion study within the reach of the non-technical foreman and worker, the apprentice and the beginner. As a result, the

SUPER-DURABLE FLAT PAINT
FLAT WALL FINISH
A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges.
Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained, irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary.
Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paint have proved prone to shell or flake off, it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty.

Crisp Loan Negotiated, Land Taxes Are Pledged

Peking, July 13.—Reports emanating from official circles have it that the Crisp Loan has reached its maturity, for the interested parties are prepared to sign this contract. The Loan amounts to £6,000,000 with the land tax of a province as security for the money borrowed.

Other reports have it that the Chang Zu and the Tao Ching Railway have been hypothecated for the loan. If these reports are confirmed, then the government is really bartering away China's heritage on a wholesale scale.

Besieged by job-hunters and begging legislators, Hsiung Ping-chi, Marshal Tsao Kun's favorite, finds it impossible to carry out the functions of the Paotingfu Party. Desirous of getting rid of this political nuisance, Hsiung plans to open new headquarters in Siantien.

Wang Yu-tse, the Director of Tobacco and Wine Administration, is holding daily conferences with the proteges of Tsao Kun. He is anxious to get through this laborious work of bringing the various party elements into reconciliation, however, he is willing to do this distasteful work for two months.

His calculation is that the presidential question will be settled in two months' time. He believes Tsao Kun will be ultimately elevated to the presidency.

WANG'S SPEECH

Wang Chia-hsiang and allied politicians, sixty-eight strong, invited Kao Lin-wei, Wu Yu-lin, Wang Yu-tse, Pien Shu-ching, Liu Meng-kan and Hsiung Ping-chi to dinner at the Central Park. The meeting was called to order by Wan who took the chair Pien failed to appear, for he had gone to Tientsin. Wang's speech is as follow:

"We believe that the Paotingfu men will co-operate with the Parliament in drawing up a permanent Constitution. We are called upon to bolster up the tottering administration, so we will do our bit in holding up this falling structure."

In reply, Kao Lin-wei said, "On behalf of Marshal Tsao Kun, I have the honor to make these few announcements. The new Japanese Ambassador will soon come to Peking to present his country's credentials to the President of China, hence it behoves the responsible men of China to solve the supreme question without further delay. The empty Presidential chair is a symbol of national weakness and disorder. With regard to finance, I have only tears to shed, for it is extremely chaotic. Mr. Wang Ko-min promises to rehabilitate China's finances for two months only. I thank you legislators for your presence in Peking to complete the all-important Constitution."

HAS BIG SCHEMES

Wang Ko-min, the new Finance Minister coyly has let it be known that he has wodnerful financial schemes up his sleeves, for he is ready to do big things for the Paotingfu crowd. The Government will settle the Gold Franc dispute first, and then this question will be referred to the National Assembly for final ratification. It is said that two or three million dollars will be appropriated from the German indemnity fund for the maintenance of the Chinese-German Bank.

While celebrating his success in securing the portfolio of Finance, Wang Ko-min found his high spirits dampened when he received a telegram from the Mukden Warlord, General Chang Tso-lin holding Wang responsible for the ten million dollars in paper-notes isued by the Mukden branch of the Bank of China.

General Chang in his message to Wang had this to say, "When the Mukden people started a run on the Bank of China, I advanced money to the Bank of China of which you are the Managing-director to the amount of ten million dollars in cash. I understand you have been offered the portfolio of Finance which post you have accepted. Will you please make remittances to me immediately?" This unexpected bombshell is costing Wang loss of sleep.

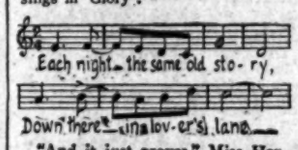
Old Home Songs in Bright Light Clubs Make Even Cops Forget to Raid

NEW YORK CITY.—No matter how citified the New Yorker becomes, a little spark of country will still make him kin to his neighbor.

This is being proved on the star-spangled white way where every night at the supper clubs and midnight rendezvous haunts, fashionable night owls lustily yell the chorus of 'Saw Mill River Road' as the million dollar orchestras play the old-fashioned tune.

Patti Harrold, herself a pretty country product, started all the reminiscence craze with the lyrics she sings in 'Glory':



"And it just proves," Miss Harrold adds softly, "that romance isn't dead, only covered up with frivolity. Underneath, New York is all sentiment."

Americans Cleanest As Well As Most Courteous, Says Sir Basil Thomson After Visit

BY SIR BASIL THOMSON

America is teaching the world how to run hotels and how to live gracefully in private houses without servants.

One of her contributions to civilisation is the plumber, who, to my surprise, is treated as a joke, just as he is in England, but with far less reason.

For without him where would be the private bathroom in hotels and apartments, which has made the Americans the cleanest people now living? The genius for hotel management has spread to every corner of the Union, or nearly every corner, for I encountered one or two of the old primitive Western hostelries.

I heard of four young Englishmen, newly landed in New York, who would probably disagree with my appreciation of the American hotel; but they had been so incautious as to put their boots out into the passage to be cleaned, after the custom in English hotels, and found in the morning that they had vanished forever.

Doubtless the bellboy thought that they had put them out because they did not need them any more.

But if you abstain from putting out your boots to be cleaned, you will find your every want supplied without going out into the street. You must be firm, however, about the newspaper photographer who wants to let off a sort of high explosive bomb of magnesium in your bedroom and fill the air with poison gas just before you retire to bed.

The Americans taught me, though they do not know it themselves, that besides being the most hospitable, they are the courteous people in the world. There is superficial courtesy in Europe; there you will find real courtesy in patches, but in the olden countries courtesy is apt to decline with leisure. The short-handed railroad employe on some of the English lines has no time to be polite; he barks at the inquiring traveler because barking takes less time than speaking. But the American is always courteous in that best way of courtesy which is good will.

The opening reply to a question may not be couched in conciliatory phrasing, but pursue the inquiry and the man will go out of his way to help you. To show his good fellowship, he will even take you by the sleeve. I suppose he has some subtle instinct by which he can distinguish between the foreigner who really likes him and the foreigner who does not.

The Englishman who travels in America will find no trace of national prejudice against him. If it is there he will not be allowed to discover it, but he will soon discover that he is expected to conform to the national belief that all Englishmen are slow and entirely devoid of the sense of humor. Personally I found no difficulty in this.

The foreigner is struck by curious lapses in the splendid efficiency in the public services. The railroads are well managed and the fares are low. It is true that the sleeping cars, with their promiscuous arreangements for washing and dressing, belong to a vanished age, but there may be no other practicable way of providing accommodation for the vast number of people who travel by night.

There seems to be no reason why the long distance trains should be so unpunctual, or why the trains should start and stop with a jerk that loosens most of your back teeth. In the South and West trains were anywhere from two to three hours late, and I never heard a traveler protest about it; the most I heard was a mild expression of wonder that the trains could never run "on time." The delay seemed to come from the very leisurely way in which the trains were made up, especially on roads where there was no competition. I can imagine the stream of "letters to the editor" that would flow in England if a train like the "Scotsman" or the "Cornish Riviera" took to running two hours late as a matter of habit. But then the English are not good-natured and easygoing people.

I think it was Lord Bryce who said that education in America was horizontal rather than vertical. That was some years ago; certainly it is vertical now—if only as yet in isolated peaks—as it is in other countries. The danger seems to be that too many young people are going to college and crowding to the cities, which is the natural result of college education. All want to enter what used to be called in England the "liberal professions," and there are not enough jobs to go round. What America needs is manual labor, not college graduates who become discontented citizens if they are driven by necessity to do work which they consider beneath their capacity.

It is tragic that, while America is crying out for labor, there should be a million unemployed in England. True, the million unemployed is equal only to the number that would have emigrated if there had been no war, but the flow of emigration has been dried up and both countries are the poorer. The mill which stamps into Americans all the material fed into it, is laboring rather heavily over the last batch of the raw produce of Eastern and Southern Europe.

The portent of the young people leaving the land for the cities is not peculiar to America. It is symptomatic of the age in all countries, and there seems to be no remedy. Even the village community and the garden city, movie theater, and all, do not satisfy the appetite for amusement that is an overmastering passion with the new generation.

Japanese Gunboat Katata To Take Water On Monday

The new Japanese gunboat "Katata," which is being built here by the Eastern Engineering and Shipbuilding Company, Ltd., for the Japanese government, will by launched Monday afternoon at the company's ship-yard in Yangtszepoo Road at two o'clock. A distinguished company will witness the launching.

The Katata will be the second Japanese warcraft built in China to take the water, the "Seta," a companion boat, having been launched by the same company a short time ago.

Like the Seta, the Katata is a second class gunboat. She will have an armament of six machine guns.

Foreign Interests Issue Raised Again In Mixed Court Case

Counsel Questions If Employment Constitutes Interest

The question of national interests other than Chinese was again raised in the Mixed Court Thursday when a $15,000 libel action brought by Mr. Niem, Portuguese citizen, against Wong Tu-tse was called before American Assessor Davis and Magistrate Yui. The point at issue was whether the American Assessor also should sit in the case, the defendant being connected with an American firm.

Mr. S. Moss, appearing for the complainant, contended that there was connected with an American Assessor to sit and said that it would be establishing a dangerous precedent. The fact that the man was connectet with an American firm was not sufficient. American interests must be shown.

Mr. W. S. Fleming, for the defendant, opposed this view and held that such things had been done often heretofore. The Assessor said he felt there might be American interests involved and he felt sure the Portuguese Assessor would extend him the courtesy of permitting him to sit at the hearing of the case.

Inspector Wheeler stated that it was purely a matter of the Consuls to decide. The question of employment constituting interest was for the Consuls to decide and some claimed it while some did not.

There was a sharp clash between counsel on the question of bail, Mr. Moss contending that it should be fixed at an amount equal to that claimed. Mr. Fleming contested the application hotly, stating that the defendant was employed by the Asia Insurance Co. and was a responsible individual and a property owner. The libel alleged, he said, was nothing more than a misdemeanor and a small one at that. He further stated that for several days friends had been running to defendant's residence suggesting that the case could be settled for $7,000. It had all the elements of blackmail, he declared.

Mr. Moss objected and denied that any overtures had been made. Mr. Fleming absolved counsel of any connection in the matter but insisted that nevertheless these were the facts.

Bail was finally fixed at $500.

COCKROACHES

In kitchens where cockroaches are found, borax is invaluable. Powdered borax should be sprinkled round the stove and about all corners and crannies infested by these disgusting insects. When the borax is swept away, it should be replaced with more at once, and if this remedy is steadily persisted in, the kitchen will be free of the pests in a surprisingly short time. Of course it is wise, even after the house is clear, to occasionally use borax again, for there is no security against a new colony of cockroaches.
